

Bennett Changes Emphasis

Now Culture on Stage

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said Monday that the B.C. government was turning its attention from dams and blacktop to concentrate more on the care and culture of its citizens. Earlier emphasis of the present government, he said in an interview, was establishment of a "strong economic base in our province."

This involved such things as highways, ferries, bridges, tunnels, railroads, pipelines and energy production, he said.

"Now the main emphasis of the Social Credit government of B.C. will be on broadening services to the people."

The premier's statement came during discussion of a suggestion that British Columbia's art and cultural circles seek financial support from the government. He left the door open on that point.

The question was brought up during the opening of the combined universities-Dominion Drama Festival theatre conferences held at the University of Victoria.

Tom Hendry of Toronto, head of the Canadian Theatre

Centre, had said: "As long as the government of wealthy British Columbia feels it can exist without an arts council, leadership in drama, opera and ballet will continue to be fragmented."

The premier said he had not seen the report, but that the proper procedure for seeking provincial grants was through the office of Provincial Secretary Wesley Black.

Mr. Bennett added that the government would be looking into the question of the needs of the people of B.C., including the field of the arts.

Southern Buddhists Join in Demands

SAIGON (AP)—The powerful Buddhist leadership here gave Monday night and demanded that Premier Nguyen Cao Ky withdraw troops he sent to control of Da Nang for his military regime.

All Buddhist monks are ready to die for the cause, a spokesman said.

In Da Nang, immolation platforms were thrown up at a pagoda and monks there said they are ready to set fire to themselves if government forces enter the religious compound to seize anti-government rebels holding out there.

HUNGER STRIKE

Self-immolation by Buddhist monks on the streets of Saigon was one of the factors that led to the downfall of the Ngo Dinh Diem regime in November, 1963.

Buddhists hastily piled up firewood around the wooden platforms outside the pagoda for monks who vowed to sacrifice their lives. As they erected the platforms, a fire engine drove up and parked outside the compound, inside the pagoda 10 monks and four nuns began a 48-hour hunger strike in protest of the presence of Ky's troops in Da Nang.

The Buddhist demands upon the military junta were announced in an impassioned speech in Saigon by Venerable Thien Minh, spokesman for Saigon's Buddhist leaders, chiefly Thich Tri Quang, who is regarded as a militant.

WIDER SPLIT

Ky, a Buddhist nominally, has 2,500 marines and paratroopers holding key sectors of Da Nang in an attempt to bring the dissident areas back to the control of the military government based in Saigon.

But the split between his regime and the northern Buddhists and their followers appeared to have widened since Ky's lightning military strike in Da Nang at day break Sunday. Buddhists in the northern areas have formed armed "struggle committees."

Unity Goal In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House said after top-level talks Monday on the Vietnamese crisis that the United States will work to build unity among all non-Communist elements in South Viet Nam and to carry forward "the movement towards a constitutional government."

U.S. power in the strife-ridden Southeast Asian country is "to be used to defeat Communist aggression and social misery," a spokesman said.

President Johnson discussed the Vietnamese military situation and the new political crisis with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, State Secretary Rusk, Defence Secretary McNamara and other advisers prior to Lodge's departure today for Saigon. He has been here in consultation for a week.

The White House press secretary, Bill Moyers, announced that Lodge will go to Saigon where he is due to arrive by way of Korea, for "a review of our co-ordinated efforts with members of the Korean government."

Jail Death Inquest Ordered

An inquest into the death of a woman found dead in the city jail Sunday morning will be held today or Wednesday, coroner Edmund Jorre de St. Jorre said Monday.

Police are collecting evidence, Mr. Jorre de St. Jorre said, into the death of Virginia George, 30, who died serving a three-day sentence for being intoxicated in a public place.

She was arrested Wednesday but court was told she was too ill to appear Thursday morning.

Deputy Chief Ray Maitland said Miss George had received medical attention for delirium tremens.

She had been taken to St. Joseph's Hospital Thursday night and treated after her condition had concerned the city police, Deputy Maitland said.

Dr. H. L. McNiven gave Miss George sedation twice on Saturday and she was watched constantly.

However, when she was checked at 7 a.m. Sunday, she was dead.

Fishery Dispute At 'High Pitch'

SEATTLE (CP)—Canadian and American delegates arrived here Monday in an attempt to iron out a fishery dispute which an American says has reached a "pretty high pitch."

The dispute involves the taking of salmon off the northwestern coast of North America.

Canada is insisting that American fishermen stop intercepting what Canada says are British Columbia-bound salmon in the Noyes Island area of southeastern Alaska.

Canada has said American fishermen are being permitted to cast their nets too far from shore.

The American fishermen have replied that they have what they call "historic" fishing rights in that area and they intend to stay there.

CLOSED MEETINGS

The dispute will be discussed at closed meetings starting today.

Canada is reported to have proposed that if the Americans will stop taking salmon off Noyes Island, it will curtail Canadian fishing in Juan De Fuca Strait. The reaction of the Americans to this proposal is not known.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena), whose riding includes the north coast fishing area around Prince Rupert, has said that the "only thing delaying Canadian retaliation is this ... meeting."

Mr. Howard has charged that Alaska fishermen are trying to stall a settlement until this year's big salmon run has ended. This, he said, would enable the Americans to net a large percentage of salmon headed for home rivers in Canada along the Alaska panhandle.

It's Go, Go! Into Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Two Gemini 9 pilots are completely set for a daring dash into space today to stage a moon-flight rendezvous rehearsal and a record 2½-hour space walk.

The launch of the Gemini 9 spaceship was set for 9:39 a.m. PDT, an hour and 39 minutes after the scheduled liftoff of the Agena target vehicle with which Gemini 9 is to rendezvous in space.

Launch time of the Agena, atop an Atlas booster rocket, is set for 8 a.m. Victoria time. The countdown on Gemini 9 to be boosted in space by a Titan II rocket, is to begin at 4:39 a.m.

The spectacle of bad weather in the Atlantic faded. With that hurdle past, the Gemini 9 crew, U.S. Air Force Lt.-Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Lt.-Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan, breezed through final review and training sessions Monday.

Their 70 hours and 40 minutes in space in a hectic, jam-packed parade of events that will see the 32-year-old Cernan manoeuvring himself solo through space Wednesday.

Another Vote

Liberals On Spot Today

By RON COLLISTER
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The government today faces another cliff-hanger vote over tight money that Tory George Hees warned could cause a business downturn in Canada.

Moving his first non-confidence motion since he returned to Parliament, Mr. Hees slammed the government for penalizing the small home-builder who can't raise money to go ahead.

Monday night both New Democrat and Creditiste spokesmen said they would support him, making it a close shave for the minority government.

'NEGATIVE APPROACH'

Mr. Hees, former Tory trade minister, said the government, in tight money and denying builders and prospective homeowners mortgage funds, was taking a "negative approach" to economic problems and seriously impeding the development of the nation.

He unveiled a four-point manifesto to help the small homeowner:

Mortgages under the National Housing Act should be redirected to the average home, rather than the middle or executive-type homes — "which is the case today."

Insurance companies, which seek insurance business all across Canada, should be required to invest mortgage funds in towns and rural areas "as a duty." These, he said, are the areas hit hardest.

Interest rates should be reduced to six per cent, allowing banks to participate under the National Housing Act. (The NHA rate was raised to six and three-quarter per cent last year. When the rate went above six per cent, Mr. Hees argued, the banks were eliminated from NHA financing. The banks have a six per cent ceiling interest rate.)

Passengers Survive Bad Night

MANILA (AP)—The 262 passengers aboard the Philippine ship Pioneer Cebu were reported safe today as rescue ships headed for the inter-island steamer, aground in typhoon-churned waters near Cebu.

Filipinas Pioneer Lines, owners of the vessel, said the ship is still intact and the passengers apparently safe after a night of terror on the wave-lashed rocks.

The 740-ton inter-island ship plied up on the reef Monday morning off Malapascua Island, just north of the central island of Cebu. Giant waves kicked up by 90-mile-an-hour winds broke over the vessel.

Proposal Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP)—Striking outside workers overwhelmingly rejected Monday night the city's latest proposal for arbitration to settle an 11-day-old walkout.

The Vancouver Civic Employees' Union voted 85-47 against accepting the city's proposal for arbitration to settle the union's wage dispute with the city.

Force in Rhodesia? Goldberg Horrified

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — American UN Ambassador Arthur Goldberg expressed horror Monday when he was asked about the use of force to crush the outlaw Rhodesian regime.

"It would be horrible to contemplate racial war in Africa and that is what we are talking about when we talk about the use of force in Africa," he told a press conference.

He said everything possible must be done to settle the issue without force. He added that he felt the Rhodesian crisis is the most immediate and most difficult problem facing the United Nations.

SELF-DETERMINATION

He said he hoped the meetings now going on between United Kingdom and Rhodesian authorities would point the way to a solution.

But he said the solution must be based on the principle of self-determination for all Rhodesians, including the colored people.

Mr. Goldberg spent several hours discussing foreign problems with External Affairs Minister Martin Monday. Later he met for a short time with Prime Minister Pearson.

Considerable time was spent discussing the possibility of Red

Trio of Socialists Felled by Gunman

DETROIT (AP) — A man walked into the local office of the Socialist Workers party Monday, told the three young men there, "You're all Communists," and pumped nine bullets into them, killing one.

About four hours after the shooting, police arrested a man identified by Inspector Robert Grindle as Edward Waniolek, 40, of Detroit.

NO RESISTANCE

Grindle said Waniolek was carrying a pistol and a rifle when arrested, but did not offer resistance.

Grindle said the two wounded victims, Jan Edward Garrett, 22, and Walter Graham, 19, had identified Waniolek earlier as their assailant from a picture.

FORMER STUDENT

The dead man was Leo Bernard, 23, of Detroit. A Wayne State University spokesman said Bernard recently attended the school, Graham and Garrett are liberal arts students at Wayne State, a few blocks from the midtown scene of the shooting.

TROTSKYIST GROUP

The Socialist Workers party is a Trotskyist group whose 1964 presidential candidate was Clifford DeBerry, a Negro house-painter from New York.

Grindle said the two survivors told him the man walked into the room on the Hall's second floor and asked Garrett for a list of the books they had about Lenin, leader of the 1917 Communist revolution in Russia.

GIVEN LIST

Garrett gave him the list. Grindle quoted the two as saying, and the man said, "You're all Communists" and ordered them to sit on the floor.

Bernard was killed by a single shot, Grindle said. Garrett and Graham were shot four times each.

No one else was in the hall at the time of the shooting.

Scuba Diver Escapes

Bop on Nose Deters Shark

FERNANDINA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A fearless scuba diver told Monday how he fought off a 12-foot shark that stalked him like a small fish 15 miles at sea.

Stephen Obsharsky, 22, of Jacksonville, was separated from his boat by the incident and drifted in the Atlantic for nearly a dozen hours before being rescued early Monday by the Coast Guard.

The white shark, he said, was attracted by blood from a 20-pound grouper he had speared. Obsharsky said he surrendered the small fish to the shark.

"He ate the grouper, then turned toward me, as though he wanted more," the five-foot-five telephone repairman said.

"Sharks don't like to be hit on the nose," Obsharsky said. "I jettisoned my weight belt and it hit him. It worked. He went away."

The incident took only 10 minutes, but during that time Obsharsky drifted away from Amberjack Hole where he had been diving with two companions—Victor Lloyd and Charlotte Plummer.

He waved and shouted to them before he routed the shark but they set the boat on an opposite course looking for him.

Obsharsky swam to a small fishing buoy, shedding his scuba tanks on the way because they were dragging him with the current. He kept his fins and mask. Obsharsky reached the buoy—a small 18-inch square plastic float and clung to it. His companions, meanwhile, gave up the search after 45 minutes and headed for shore to get help.

Shortly before dusk two airplanes and a helicopter passed over but Obsharsky said he didn't think they saw him. He decided to cut the buoy's anchor cable and swim for shore, using the buoy as a cushion.

At 12:45 a.m. the commercial fishing boat Azalea City radioed the Coast Guard it had heard someone cry for help, but was unable to stop in time. The cutter Point Roberts headed for the area and picked up Obsharsky about 45 minutes later.

Liberals on Spot

The government should set aside each year enough money to meet estimated requirements for the whole year under the act.

PLAN AHEAD

This would be a "marked increase" over what it is making available today.

This would mean that builders could plan for a full year's operations and not be restricted in their operations, as they are now.

Mr. Hees said that shortage of credit is curtailing or cancelling business plans for expansion, with a consequent loss of production and prosperity.

This, he said, was a situation identical to the one that faced the country in late 1956 and early 1957.

TOOK YEARS

The Liberal government, at that time, refused to reverse its stand and allow easier credit, and it took the incoming Tory government three years to bring the country out of the recession that followed.

Tight money, he said, is this government's method of combating inflation.

The government had chosen the negative method of combating the problem by reducing the money available to Canadians.

THREE-PRONGED

This was clear in the budget, with its three-pronged restriction on money:

- Tight money.
- An increase in income taxes.
- A special refundable tax of five per cent on profits.

The economy, Mr. Hees said, needs more skilled workers. It is obvious that the program to train more skilled workers is inadequate.

'INCREDIBLE'

He appealed for immigration policies with attractive inducements to bring skilled workers from other industrial countries.

"The absence of such a program has allowed an increasingly difficult situation to get steadily worse," he said.

"It is simply incredible that in a young and growing country such as Canada, the government should be forcing industry to slow down on normal expansion programs."

FOUR STEPS

To keep the economy healthy, he said, four steps are needed:

- A greatly accelerated and expanded program to train skilled workers needed for normal industrial expansion.
- An immigration policy that will attract skilled workers.
- Incentives to promote increased productivity, enabling Canadian industry to compete successfully at home and abroad.
- Replacement of the government's tight money with a policy that will provide industrial loans at reasonable rates of interest.

ONE BASKET

The shortage of money for home-building, he said, has been aggravated by the steady increase in the amount of maximum loans under NHA to $18,000.

This absorbed the available money supply into fewer units and brought many purchasers, who did not need NHA financing, into the NHA mortgage market.

Other mortgage money was squeezed into multiple family, high-rise apartment complexes as lenders put all their eggs in one basket.

The small town, village or rural area found it impossible to obtain money at all.

GIVEN CHOICE

Rates are seven and three-quarter per cent on amounts up to $7 1/2 per cent on valuation in a first and second mortgage.

When two per cent mortgage insurance, application fee and legal fee are added, this became impossible for the local wage earner to consider.

Mr. Hees gave the government a choice:

- Keep tight money, and a business downturn will definitely follow.
- End tight money, and prosperity will continue.

He will try out for the first time a back-pack maneuvering unit with 12 tiny jets and its own independent oxygen supply—the forerunner to devices that will enable man to work free and alone in space. An extended tether connected to the spacecraft will allow Cernan to get as far away as 140 feet from the spacecraft.

Before and after those orbital acrobatics, Stafford, 35, will guide the spacecraft through some intricate and difficult maneuvers that will duplicate as closely as possible some of the rendezvous techniques needed for man to return from the moon.

BEST PLANNED

He will fly the spacecraft into a 4 1/2-hour pursuit of the Agena target rocket at blast-off today—a hurry-up chase that will cut two hours off the time it took Gemini 8 to perform the same task two months ago.

After practice dockings with the fuel-laden Agena target, they will shut down for the night to rest up for Cernan's space walk the next day.

During Cernan's space walk Wednesday, Stafford will undock with the Agena and move about 80 feet away from the target ship. Then—Cernan out on his tether—Stafford will guide the Gemini into a mock rescue of his space buddy, who will play the part of a disabled astronaut.

After Cernan returns to the spaceship, Stafford will re-dock with the 7,000-pound Agena and trigger the Agena's big thrust motors—the first time one of two joined space vehicles will be used to propel the other.

On the third day of the flight, the Agena's engines will be used twice to change the orbits of the joined vehicles with Stafford controlling the Agena rockets by electrical connections from the Gemini.

At 8:19 a.m. Friday, Stafford and Cernan are due to splash down into the Atlantic recovery area to be picked up by the aircraft carrier Wasp.

China's admission to the United Nations.

In spite of consistent rebuffs, he said, the United States would continue its peaceful overtures to China.

Both Canada and the U.S. would welcome a peaceful China into the international community to discuss such matters as the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons and disarmament.

He said Americans regretted China was "self-isolated." He hoped it would abandon its policy of "outspoken belligerence and its adherence of the point of view that political power grows out of the barrel of a gun."

He added it was too soon for Canada to reach an agreement on the China issue. Then he added quickly "that doesn't mean we disagreed."

Mr. Goldberg said he " fervently hoped" that Canada would not reduce its peace keeping forces in the world.

Eight Hurt In Tornado

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Tornado-force winds ripped into downtown Columbus Monday evening, ripping off the courthouse spire, smashing plate glass windows and sending trees crashing down on power lines.

Eight persons were injured but no deaths were reported. Four or five of the injured were in a supermarket that was hit. Phenix City, Ala., just across the river, also reportedly sustained damage.

"Canadian soldiers are making a great contribution to keeping the peace," he said. He warned of the danger that peacekeeping operations could be considered permanent solutions.

"Peacekeeping forces must not be an excuse for a political settlement," he said.

The American ambassador stressed that the United States doesn't want to escalate the war in Viet Nam. He couldn't see any immediate hope of the United Nations contributing to a solution of the war.

The U.S., he said, has no designs on the government of North Viet Nam, nor does it want to maintain bases in South Viet Nam.

At the same time he emphasized that the United States would under no circumstances be forced out of Viet Nam. While admitting there was public opposition to U.S. policy in Viet Nam, he said the "overwhelming majority of the U.S. people" support it.

Problem Rules Out High Heels But Exercises Should Help

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I can't wear shoes in comfort with heels more than one inch high. Lower heels are also uncomfortable. With heels, my feet slide into the toes of the shoes and all my weight seems to concentrate there. Can exercise strengthen the arches so that I can wear dress shoes on occasion? — M.H.

I hope you have consulted an orthopedist or a podiatrist. Your problem may be such that you will have to forgo high heels, but there are exercises to strengthen foot muscles.

One exercise is rising on your toes. Another is rocking back and forth from heel to toe. Curling your toes over the edge of a telephone book is another.

Your Good Health

Massage the soles of the feet regularly.

Hot foot baths ease the discomfort. A whirlpool device that you can use at home is also soothing. With a problem such as yours, however, you should have professional advice.

Dear Dr. Molner: How long is a bottle of iodine or at mercurochrome effective? — C.G.S., JR.

It depends on how tightly it is corked. I recall some people who put away miniature bottles of brandy to be opened 20-odd years later. When the time came, the bottles were about half full. The alcohol had gradually evaporated in spite of the stoppers.

Iodine isn't a liquid, but a solid. The crystals are dissolved in alcohol to make the familiar tincture of iodine. As the alcohol evaporates, the proportion of iodine in the tincture increases. Too strong a solution can be irritating.

Mercurochrome is a water solution. It doesn't evaporate as rapidly as alcohol, and is not as irritating as iodine in a strong solution.

This evaporation, if the bottle is kept tightly corked, isn't very rapid, and it would doubtless take several years to make any great difference.

Strike Puts Prices Up, Pound Down

LONDON (CP)—Food prices inched up and the pound sterling slipped Monday as Britain's first strike of merchant seamen since 1911 started putting the squeeze on Britain.

"It will settle nothing," Prime Minister Wilson said on national radio and television. He called it "a strike against the state, against the community."

He painted a picture of labor-management mistrust and outdated work rules bedeviling the shipping industry and offered the government's help in solving its basic problems.

READY TO ACT

But the government is ready to act, with the help of the Royal Navy, if the strike over a labor contract produces a national emergency, he said.

The 85,000 members of the National Union of Seamen began their walkout at midnight Sunday night and union officials said the men's response was "100 per cent."

More than 300 ships lay idle around the British coast. Ocean liners, cruise ships, English Channel ferries and coastal vessels clogged big and small harbors, often blocking berths that could be used by foreign vessels.

PLANE OPTION

Canadian Pacific was forced to cancel the 25,500-ton Empress of England's scheduled departure for Quebec City and Montreal from Liverpool today. A spokesman said options have been taken out on five chartered aircraft to fly the more than 800 passengers to Canada later in the week.

The Empress is registered in Britain and employs British seamen.

Cumard said the 22,600-ton Franconia, which was to have sailed to Quebec City and Montreal Wednesday with some 750 passengers, will be tied up. Passengers will be booked on the Holland-America 24,000-ton Statendam to sail the same day, bound for New York but with a diversion to Halifax where two special CNR trains will be available.

QUEEN HALTED

The 83,600-ton Queen Elizabeth, with more than 1,000 passengers booked, will be halted Thursday. Some passengers will be accommodated on the 66,300-ton France also bound for New York. Others may be offered air transport.

The strike came as the British economy is convalescing from a sterling crisis and trying to reorganize itself for a stronger fight in overseas markets.

Fears of the consequences on the economy were reflected on foreign exchange markets. The pound slipped from Friday's official price of $2.7925 (U.S.) to $2.7915 at the close of Monday's trading.

PANIC BUYING

It was the lowest level since speculators attacked the pound last September and the Bank of England bought pounds to support future prices of Britain's currency.

Panic buying was reported in a few fruit and vegetable markets by retailers.

Prices of imported foods, especially potatoes, went up. Prices of lettuce and tomatoes, also imported at this time of year, were higher.

BASIS $42

Neither management nor union showed any immediate inclination to give way. Ford Geddes, chairman of the Shipping Federation, said the employers' last offer of a 13-per cent increase in three years is as far as they could go.

The seamen demanded a 17-per cent package immediately. Basic wage is about $42 for a 56-hour week. The seamen say they have to work up to 80 hours a week to earn the average pay of $56. They want a 40-hour week with overtime and other benefits.

The compromise proposed by the government during pre-strike talks was a full inquiry into working conditions and an immediate three-per cent increase. The shippers agreed; the union did not.

Final flurry Sunday preceded strike shutdown of London Docks

Government, Navy Ready in Emergency

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson told Britons Monday night the current seamen's strike can only delay a solution of the seamen's grievances and will settle nothing.

"This is not the way," Wilson said in a televised speech. The government will declare a state of emergency "if it becomes necessary," but in the meantime the Royal Navy is ready to deliver essential supplies to remote parts of the country which depend on shipping services.

"This is a challenge we did not seek and do not want. All the more so because it comes from men who have won the undying respect and admiration of the whole nation, men who have genuine and deep grievances that ought to be dealt with urgently and by effective means."

Wilson termed the merchant marine Britain's "life line" in both war and peace and predicted "grave consequences" for the country.

He reiterated an offer made last week—and rejected by the seamen—of an interim wage increase and a court of inquiry to deal with issues in the strike and with the "outdated" Merchant Shipping Act of 1894 which governs life at sea.

Wilson said the strike also hit at the government's prices and incomes policy—its attempts to keep costs in line with productivity.

Wilson also warned of the cumulative effects of the strike. Markets once lost to British shippers might never be regained. Foreign buyers whose deliveries were cut off might become permanently committed to other sources of supply.

There could be shortages of fresh foods initially, then of other domestic supplies.

Elusive Vessel Sought

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U.S. Coast Guard cutters and aircraft searched a 180-mile stretch off the central California coast Monday for a fishing boat reported missing. The boat was described as a 46-footer, named Coronado.

But the question arose whether there is such a fishing boat. The coast guard said the division of small craft harbors had no Coronado registered for commercial purposes.

LACK REPORTS

Secondly, there have been no reports received of boats overdue or any persons missing along the coast.

The search started when the coast guard received radio messages Saturday advising that a boat named Coronado, with 12 persons aboard, was having engine trouble 22 miles south of Santa Cruz.

The cutter Lamar and aircraft searched until dark Sunday and found nothing, except an unidentified capized hulk.

CHECKS MADE

The coast guard headquarters was checking U.S. customs and other agencies to determine whether there is any boat named Coronado, of the given description, registered on the West Coast.

The coast guard sighted a life jacket in kelp beds north of Big Sur, but was unable to retrieve it so had no idea of its origin.

Why Can't You Remember

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they can influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. Montreal Thug Bound, Slain

MONTREAL (CP)—A preliminary autopsy on the bodies of Andre Paquette, 43, and Alice Rioux, found by Quebec Provincial Police in a lime-filled grave last Wednesday, indicates that Paquette was bound and shot.

The bodies were found near Piedmont, Que., 50 miles north of here.

HANDCUFFED

Dr. Jean Paul Valcourt, a provincial medico-legal expert, said Monday that preliminary examination indicates that Paquette's hands were handcuffed behind his back and his feet bound with electric wire before he was shot through the back of the head from close range.

Paquette was described by police as the mastermind behind a $1,400,000 mail robbery here in 1964. Miss Rioux was described as his girl friend.

Crisis in Britain

EVEN FROM THIS distance, the dire consequences and long-term penalties of the strike by Britain's National Union of Seamen are apparent.

One of the most tragic aspects of the walk-out of more than 60,000 merchant seamen is that the moderates among their leaders would have been disposed to accept the shipowners' offer of a 13 per cent boost in pay spread over three years. But the left-wing militants refused to consider it.

This inter-factional disagreement on policy is seen in Britain as the real reason for the strike.

What the seamen are asking is the equivalent of a 17 per cent increase in wages, effective immediately. Yet, since 1960, they have received wage boosts amounting to 43.5 per cent.

Many Britons, including the majority of members of the government Labor party, see the union demands as an obvious and alarming challenge to Prime Minister Harold Wilson's hold-the-line policy with respect to prices and incomes, and a resentful public reaction indicates it would like to see this challenge met and resisted.

Government acceptance of the seamen's demands would scuttle the plans by which it hoped to check inflation and improve the national economic position. This, as the Liberal Manchester Guardian says, would be disastrous.

The strike comes at a time when Britain is bending every effort at improving her export trade. On this continent in particular missions are striving to encourage a "buy British" sentiment, and the services of the British merchant marine are vital to the success of the campaign. These services are now approaching paralysis.

One of the immediate effects of the strike will be shortages on the British market. Whether or not the government will be able to check the natural effect of rising prices is doubtful.

But of far greater danger to the British economy is the long-range result. If the seamen gain their objective they are risking the experience of American and Canadian unions whose unrealistic wage demands smashed their countries' ability to carry world cargoes.

British merchant shipping has provided an important part of the nation's earnings for more than two centuries. Its continued healthy operation is essential to the welfare of the shipbuilding industry, and all its component suppliers. Without the fleet that wears "the Red Duster," as the British call their merchant service flag, the country faces a sad and perilous future. Yet that is what the seamen are risking.

Two comments in Monday's London newspapers provide an indication of the British reaction. The Daily Sketch observes that the British seaman's gallantry is unequalled but that "a handful of misguided men" now has led him "into a futile, foolish strike." The News of the World, while expressing sympathy with the British merchant mariner, feels even more for the country as a whole "which now stands to be strangled to an extent that even Hitler failed to achieve."

Faced with the revolt in Labor's ranks, Prime Minister Wilson must decide within hours what action to take in this national emergency. On policy, he cannot allow the strike to succeed. And if he attempts to break it he risks the truly fearful prospect of a much wider confrontation. By only the most delicate negotiations can he hope to achieve a compromise. But in compromise of some description the remedy must be found.

Very much more than the Labor prime minister's political future is at stake. It is, in fact, the fate of the nation.

A Poor Case

IT NOW APPEARS quite definite that Britain is ready to take a firm stand against the Commonwealth African nations who are advocating the use of military force to settle the Rhodesian dispute.

According to a diplomatic source in London, Britain informed the Commonwealth sanctions committee Friday that it would neither support the African move to take tougher measures against Rhodesia nor reveal details of the progress being made in the current Anglo-Rhodesian exploratory talks.

The same source also reported that Canada gave full support to Britain's position, arguing that further mandatory sanctions or the use of force would not be the best way of settling the crisis over Rhodesia.

This Anglo-Canadian stand might well come as something of a shock to a number of African Commonwealth members who have their collective hearts set on blood-letting as the only answer to the Rhodesian problem.

However, the case they have made for this sanguinary solution has been sadly weakened over the past few months by their own irresponsible words and actions which have not gone unheard or unseen by the more mature nations of the world.

In Full Flower

THIS WEEK SEES the Dominion Drama Festival in full flower on the boards of the McPherson Playhouse, with the national finalists of Canada's amateur theatre groups vying for the accolade to be stamped on the successful play and players.

It is a notable occasion for the local scene. Not only does the festival come here after an absence of 13 years, but it becomes a feature of this centennial year and caps the civic playhouse as a centre of local theatrical activity.

The site of the festival therefore pays tribute to the renewed vitality and public interest which has followed the opening last year of the Centennial Square playhouse. One doubts that ever before was local theatre so alive and stimulating as it now is, with growing opportunity for the culture which is expressed in theatrical terms.

It is an occasion also that invites a warm welcome to the distinguished British actor and director, Mr. Marius Goring, who will adjudicate the plays, seven in number and representative of dramatic talent from coast to coast, and whose judgments and comments will be followed eagerly by all participants in the festival.

No Victoria entry has a place in the charmed circle of finalists, but this does not lessen enthusiasm among local theatrical groups for whom the festival means so much. The McPherson Playhouse should be a mecca this week of inspiration and attractive presentation.

Thinking Aloud

of short, and sharp, and teasing was...

By TOM TAYLOR

WHEN the local Maple Leafs came home from their Fordham triumph Wednesday they were greeted by a sign, so big it couldn't be missed, saying "you are the greatest."

So they were in the concept of the past hockey season, enough with a bit to spare to persuade Toronto's Mr. Smythe to leave them here for a few more winters.

In the sports world of greater width however this term, "the greatest," is more familiarly associated with Mr. Casper Clay, who unlike the Maple Leafs didn't leave such compliments to the utterance of others but instead claimed it himself for himself.

There is no inconsiderable difference here, you know. But in what to many comes as a startling reversal of verbal form the "greatest" of the prize ring has dropped the tragicomic that, to begin with anyway, made him famous. Reports from London, where he arrived last week in preparation to fight England's Henry Cooper on Saturday next, indicate that his business has undergone a change.

Give him his due, which in the ring, is a big one, his boasting wasn't at all empty. As with the Maple Leafs he reached his goal; he became the champion of his realm. And this apparently has subdued his tongue.

He explains the reversal quite neatly. "The days for boxing are over now that I am no longer campaigning for the title." There is, it may thus be deduced, no need for further self-praise.

If the conversion is genuine, and lasting, there could be a moral here for all who reach the top, especially if they have "battered" out loud in one fashion or another to get there. Position, the role of champion, does speak for itself.

But there is also another reason for Mr. Clay's unaccounted reticence, according to the reports. His name.

Whatever the draft records of his country call him, this young protagonist of the square, as a ring says that the days of Casper Clay have gone for ever.

He will only answer questions, and in his present mood seemingly few of them, if he is addressed by his Black Muslim name of Muhammad Ali.

Now a man is entitled to be called by the name he chooses. If there is one thing that annoys a person, any person — other than it being forgotten altogether, which is worse — it is to have his name mispronounced, spelled wrongly, or otherwise treated about.

A rose might be given another appellation, but not an individual. And if the name might be coined Muhammad Ali has planted a few roses for himself in the prize ring.

No official change of name has ever been cited as occasioned by deed poll in the case of the former Mr. Clay, but to him perhaps that would be a mere formality not worth bothering about. After all, movie stars are known by their adopted film names.

If you want to speak to him, therefore, it's Ali. And he's the champion, which doubtless is enough.

The test of his new-found modesty, however, although not his name, will come on Saturday night, I suppose. It will be surprising if after disposing of Mr. Cooper, as he is fully expected to do, his exuberance doesn't get the better of him and cause a relapse.

And the world doesn't once more hear that proud claim: "I'm the greatest."

Faults of the Reserve System

By J. MELLING

"RESERVE-dwelling" in the last 100 years has brought a peculiar status as well as a new way of life for Indians. One feature of this status, until the Diefenbaker administration partially removed it by conferring the federal voting right upon Indians, was their disenfranchisement. (Even today, there are provinces in Canada where Indians may not vote at provincial elections.) Another and more important feature is the linking of this legal status with property-interests and with "normal residence on a reserve."

The nature of these interests as they relate to land and the implications of these interests as they relate to free contract, security for credit and the raising of capital from non-Indian sources, have proved far-reaching and have posed questions for which no adequate answers have yet been supplied.

If an Indian is exempt — as a feature of his status — from pledge, mortgage, seizure and distraint in respect of his property interests at the instance of a non-Indian, he is unlikely to be able to procure necessary credit from ordinary sources for productive enterprises.

Hence, present Indian status is an obstacle to security for those loans which chartered banks might be willing to extend if Indian status were differently construed.

To an economist it would be plain that the right of property is basic to all other real rights, since it is the necessary precondition of exchange. But an Indian has no right of ownership in the land he may possess and occupy in a reserve. He is caught up in a pre-modern system of property relations which largely frustrates exchange, the transfer of the means of production and division of labor, and all too often he utterly lacks the incentives to "call forth the exertions necessary for supplying the means of expenditure." Hence, his reserves have become enclaves of acute poverty, largely deficient in economic enterprise, where the skill — as one observer has put it — of obtaining social assistance must replace the skill of hunting and trapping.

We cannot claim that this disability of the Indian's legal status — the absence of his own property rights — has doubtful privileges — has been introduced whereby One West Coast Indian band council has suggested that the "protection" of Indian property be abolished in respect of bands deemed by the government to be "advanced." Though the government has not so far acted on this, it has adopted a variant, and arrangements have been introduced whereby a revenue-receiving band council will underwrite a loan from a non-Indian to one (or even a group) of its band members, on condition that the collateral property-interest is pledged to itself.

So long as Indian legal status remains, further ingenuity in this particular direction is urgently needed, for present devices — though not useless — are minimal in their effect. Band councils deemed to be "advanced" may raise money and even control the revenue and capital sections of their reserves, in the Indian trust funds held in Ottawa. But the pace of "advancement" has been so slow that by 1960 only 23 band councils (or about 4 per cent) were free to raise money and only two (or just over 3 per cent) were free to manage their trust fund shares. It is therefore clear that credit, as a particular mode of production enabling more wealth to be produced, must largely come from government sources.

The Revolving Loan Fund for

This is the second of six instalments of an article reprinted from Space, the journal of the Institute of Race Relations, London. The author is dean of degree studies in extension at McMaster University.

Indians, now fixed at a minimum of $1,000,000 to serve the needs of over 200,000 people, is hopelessly inadequate. Yet so long as Indians remain outside the mainstream of Canadian life and permeated by underdevelopment and demoralization, private sources of credit to Indians (except for consumption where it is least desirable) will continue to be merely marginal.

If the government now sees that the first priority in Indian affairs is to combat poverty and to build up economic opportunity, it also recognizes that a number of factors has come into prominence since Confederation which render the situation very awkward.

First, since reserves were created primarily in order to render certain areas available for settlement by whites, no reserves were created in areas where the whites had quite ample opportunities for any settlement in which they might be interested. Hence, no reserves were anywhere created for Eskimos in the Northwest; none were created for Indians in Labrador or in the far-flung North West Territories. While some problems affect all of the native peoples wherever they live, other problems are peculiar to the reserve-dwelling Indians and appear less tractable than the former.

Second, the administrative inconvenience now attending the provision of services to Indian reserves can hardly be annulled by a stroke of the government's pen when memory is still green that the government created the reserves for its own administrative convenience. When those such as the Indians become so accustomed to custodial care imposed upon them that they value their status more for the advantages it offers than for the major disability it imposes, and while resenting the dependency it breeds, they will be reluctant to relinquish it.

The Bee Research Association links the bee researchers of 90 countries. The queen — so to speak — is an ex-physiologist, Dr. Eva Crane, who directs a staff of five and a global bee information service.

Russia and Formosa are members; in fact Russian bee research is apparently on a very large scale. "China has been the thickest so far," says Dr. Crane, "but we've just had an inquiry from Peking."

Bee literature is handled in 47 languages. In the summer there will be a conference on drones. "All the drone wallahs will be coming, from California and Australia and so on. Drones have been rather neglected, but now things are coming to a head."

The house was full of the gentle murmuring of visiting bee people and a mild smell of onion soup. Against a wall was a reproduction of a Spanish cave painting showing apidly prehistoric men collecting prehistoric honey from prehistoric bees.

Beekkeeping is older than history, Dr. Crane says. In the Middle East, beehives were made of pots, in forest areas from logs, in agricultural areas from baskets.

The bees haven't changed much — but men have. Bee researchers have discovered astonishing things — the now famous bee dance; and the "queen substance" which workers lick from the queen and which unites them round her.

Dr. Callow, who successfully analyzed the queen substance at the National Institute for Medical Research, Mill Hill, was standing near wondering about the onion soup. He is also now wondering, he said, about an "alarm substance" which apparently issues from a gland near the sting and makes the bees highly excited and alarmed when they smell it.

Dr. Callow has now moved to the Agricultural Research Council's Rothamsted experimental station, where a £30,000 of equipment is being installed to help him track down alarm substance and other curious odors and secretions which evidently play a crucial role in bee life.

At Chalfont St. Peter, the new headquarters has an air of cheerful co-operative effort. Week beekkeeping, one cannot refrain from remarking, is humming.

Washington Calling

Deep Prejudice

By MARQUIS CHILDS

ALTHOUGH the Great Society programs have been cut back, the pressure of unrest and continuing tension in the Negro ghettos will scarcely allow a postponement until another and more convenient day presents ways to cure ancient ills. Temporary remedies are being looked to in the hope they will at least abate the trouble.

The department of housing and urban development is providing $2,000,000 to make cheap bus service available to Negroes in Watts. You'll probably recall that Watts is the Los Angeles community where last August a Negro uprising left 34 dead, 1,032 wounded and property damage of $40,000,000. A more recent flare-up was checked with only two lives lost.

Those who have worked with the problem of Watts both before and after the tragedy of last August believe a basic cause was the feeling of isolation and alienation obsessing many Watts residents and particularly the younger generation. They do not believe they are part of the system; therefore, when a racial incident touches off violence, they strike out against the system as they did in Watts.

Negroes in the area have only a very small share of ownership in writing from Los Angeles recently. One proposal after the uprising was that Negro enterpriaries be furnished capital on a loan basis and given guidance and encouragement in a business that they themselves would own. In this way they would really become participants — partners — in the capitalist system.

Letters that have come to me take strong issue with this concept. They reflect what seems to be a deep-seated prejudice about the capacity of the Negro to better his lot. This attitude finds private expression among city officials struggling with the problem of the Negro ghettos. One letter writer put it this way:

"You can take a Negro family from any slum, establish them in a fine house, equip them with all the necessities and put a reasonable operating capital to their bank account. You can give them a going business or a job in which they can continue to support themselves in this fashion provided they exert themselves. And, in most cases, they will have 'humified' their quarters and degraded their situation within just a few years."

Other oppressed minorities, the writer pointed out, had come to America and had bettered themselves by hard work and saving. Why not the Negro?

If there were no more than isolated bigotry it might be ignored. But there is some evidence that it is a widely held belief which lies behind the allegation of other minorities that Negroes are being given favored treatment. In what must seem in retrospect to have been the high tide of the civil rights thrust, President Johnson hit hard on this very point. It was in his Howard University commencement speech, rated as one of his most notable utterances to date.

The president said that we cannot find a "complete answer" in the experience of other minorities. The Negro, like those others, will have to rely mostly on his own efforts.

But he just cannot do it alone," the president continued. "Much of the Negro community is buried under a blanket of history and circumstance. It is not a lasting solution to lift just one corner of that blanket. We must stand on all sides and we must raise the entire cover if we are to liberate our fellow citizens."

Having lived for several generations in rural slums and, before that, confined to slave quarters, the president was saying, the Negro has to be helped in learning to get along in northern cities, where 73 per cent of his race now are. Now a new civil rights bill is before the Congress. It contains a fair housing provision meant to end discrimination in the sale and rental of houses and apartments nationwide. This far-reaching provision strikes at the barriers that keep most Negroes within the city ghettos while at the same time it affronts what may well be the most fundamental prejudice of the white community.

The Negro moves in, the neighborhood goes down, is the most frequently heard expression of this prejudice. Repeatedly it has been proved that, where economic conditions are equal and where ruthless real estate operators can be prevented from exploiting the situation, this is not true. Nevertheless, it is a barrier to be breached.

Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen, minority leader, says the provision is unconstitutional and he will oppose it. That is powerful opposition, but civil rights leaders are confident that one more step will be taken in the struggle for equality.

Timely Handbook

From the Gazette, Montreal

PEOPLE have been worried over the possible dangers in the use of pesticides.

To answer their questions the Canadian Agricultural Chemical Association has issued a "Pesticide Safety Handbook." It has been two years in preparation by scientists in the industry.

Mr. A. L. Harvard, president of the association, says: "In view of the controversy that has raged over the use of pest control products and the hazard that may arise from incorrect use, this factual pesticide safety book fills a crying need. We wrote this practical instruction manual not only for farmers and gardeners, but also for agriculturalists, extension workers and schools."

The handbook describes the hazards, gives the safety rules, suggests the safety equipment, tells how to prepare a mix and how properly to use a sprayer in orchard, garden, field, greenhouse, poultry house and barn. There are first aid instructions.

The preparation of such a handbook shows the acceptance by an industry of its responsibility, when a product may involve some risk from improper handling. Pesticides have been a great boon. It is all the more important, then, that the risks should be stated and the procedure for avoiding them made clear. At the beginning of another gardening season, the handbook comes at the right time.

Day for Cousins As Sisters Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Two Scottish sisters were reunited at Toronto International Airport Monday while their 28 children milled about and immigration officials stood by looking pleased.

Mrs. Catherine Harte of Glasgow arrived after a seven-hour jet flight from Prestwick, bringing 12 of her 14 children.

She was met by her husband, Peter, 47, and two older children who had come over earlier.

Also on hand were her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moore of Hamilton, and their 14 children.

Mr. Harte, who has bought a five-bedroom home in St. Catharines, Ont. in preparation for the newcomers, beamed happily while an immigration department secretary presented roses to his wife.

"His for the children we've come over," he said. "They have a better life here."

"The children were starting to come to working age," said Mr. Harte. "Over here they could treble the wages."

Mr. Harte, an engineer, is working for Columbus McKinnon Ltd. of St. Catharines. In Scotland, he had to take a night job as a bartender to support the family.

Asked whether they planned additions to their family, Mr. Harte winced and Mrs. Harte said:

"That's in the hand of God."

Crippling Strike Expected

PARIS (AP)—A countrywide strike of more than 5,000,000 workers today is expected to paralyze the French economy for 24 hours in the biggest demonstration of labor unrest since President de Gaulle took power in 1958.

Unions also have called for a mass march in the capital from the Bastille to the Place de la Republique, the traditional rallying point of French labor.

The strike will hit public services from airlines to zoos, varying from shutdowns in the case of electricity to slowdowns in the case of inter-city rail traffic.

FACTORIES

In addition to the public service strikers another 3,000,000 workers in private industry will be idle in factories shutting down for lack of power.

The aim of the 24-hour strike is to draw attention to what the unions say are low wages and long hours and to demonstrate as one union leader said, "that the labor movement has not fallen into lassitude."

The strike will draw workers from airports, banks, bus lines, construction jobs, customs posts, electric power stations, garbage disposal services, gas works, post offices, radio and television stations, railways, schools, social welfare offices, subways, taxis, telephone exchanges, water works and zoos.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's population was an estimated 19,859,000 at April 1 and will pass 20,000,000 within a few weeks or months.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics said Monday the population at April 1 was up 1,621,000 or nearly nine per cent from the June, 1961, census.

Since the last census there have been an estimated 2,100,000 births and 500,000 immigrants have been added to the population. There have been 700,000 deaths and 370,000 have left the country.

Largest population increase since 1961 was in Ontario, where the population rose 10.1 per cent from the 1961 count to an estimated 6,868,000 at April 1. Biggest percentage increase, 13.6, was recorded by British Columbia.

INCREASES

Estimated April 1 population of provinces and the territories, with 1961 census figures and percentage increase in parentheses:

Murder Charged

Accused Wanted No Publicity For Other Woman

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — William Dalton Barber, 55, testified Monday that his only purpose in giving a confession to police was so the woman he loved wouldn't be involved.

Barber, an Algoma Steel Corp. executive charged with capital murder in the death of his wife, Marjorie, 33, on Dec. 3, 1965, was the sixth witness called by defence counsel C. T. Murphy.

Barber testified that Inspector Robert McEwen told him at the police station Feb. 12 the only way he could keep Irene Chapman from getting involved was to give a statement.

"I stood up and said I killed her. That was my statement," he said. He didn't want the woman he loved to be involved in scandal and publicity.

"I tried to protect her," Barber said after he signed a written statement he asked to see Mrs. Chapman. She was brought to him for only a few minutes.

BURNED HOSE

He said he learned from her that she had given a statement to police about their relationship and was already involved. He then asked police to tear up his statement as he wanted to make a new one. He said they refused.

Barber denied that he had ever burned any garden hose in the living room fireplace. He said his wife did all the gardening and often used pieces of hose to stake house-plants.

The Barbers' cleaning woman, Mrs. Helen Lepage, testified earlier in the trial that she found some partly burned plastic hose in the Barbers' house six days after Mrs. Barber was found dead.

SMOKE, FUMES

On the night of his wife's death, Barber said, he had swallowed some pills and whisky and gone to bed. His wife was not home.

The next thing he remembered was his wife being in the bedroom. She was undressing and had a red cloth around her head.

The next time he awakened he found the bedroom and kitchen full of smoke and fumes and the door to the garage and an enclosed breeze-way open. He didn't see his wife in the garage.

MAC Has The Knack!

Haley and Eberle in a scene from The Knack

From the opening curtain, MAC Theatre Society, Calgary, held both audience and adjudicator in the palm of its hand Monday night.

Then the fingers curled the McPherson Playhouse into a ball, and bounced it up and down with side-splitting laughter and house-rocking applause for two hours.

But the biggest hand of all was reserved for adjudicator Marius Goring, when he told the audience he could find almost nothing to criticize in a "beautiful production."

The play by Ann Jellicoe was produced on the second night of the Dominion Drama Festival.

SEDUCTION
Joyce Doolittle directed the play, which concerns a hilarious few hours in the life of three boys who are trying to bed a girl from the country.

The Knack, indeed, is that of seduction.

But the real knack on display at the McPherson was that of what the adjudicator described as brilliant acting.

WHO HAS KNACK?

Michael Ball, as Tolin, played the man who has a way with women.

Robert Haley played Colin, the young man who hasn't got the knack, but is trying frantically to acquire it.

And James Eberle played Tom, too busy decorating his room (in black, white and blotches of grey) to care.

Into a room with these three, is thrown Sharon Pollock, as Nancy, the girl who decides she has been raped.

ENGLISH

The comedy is a fountain of youthful high spirits, as well as ribaldry.

Mr. Goring said The Knack concerns the battle of the sexes. "I'm very, very happy that this play came from England, my country, and it's a welcome change from the kitchen sinks we've all been living under."

"There is no gloom in this play, and possibly it shows

Dominion Drama Festival

By Patrick O'Neill

there is a little life yet in the old dog of England."

He said the play was written by an actress, and it is meant to be played, not read. "It only has real meaning when it is performed," he said.

IMPROVISATION

Mr. Goring described the play as a sketch, for improvisation by director and actors.

Describing the performance, the adjudicator said:

"When a play is done this well, why waste time on little details?"

He said the set of John Hughes and the costumes of Ruth Frost were "splendid."

He outlined a few "minor" reservations, criticizing a jumble of furniture just off the room at one side of the stage. "I don't like breaks in style."

MOST RIGHT

He said most of the costumes were dead right, but the girl was a bit too nicely dressed.

Mr. Goring said the players were a little disappointing in the third act, when they were sometimes trying to be funny.

McPherson stage manager Stewart Paul takes a moment to chat with MAC player James Eberle, at dress rehearsal of Monday's The Knack, at the DDF.—(Ian McKinn)

Festival Is Fun But Some Days...

It just wasn't Joyce Doolittle's day.

She sat in a rear seat of the McPherson Playhouse Monday afternoon, watching her cast prepare for the big competition.

She was directing The Knack. "I left Calgary with a mild head-cold," she sniffed. "I arrived in Victoria Friday, I went straight to bed, and that's where I've been for 30 hours."

She cast a miserable glance at the slow progress of dress rehearsal for MAC Theatre Society's production Monday night.

"And this was supposed to be my big holiday."

James Eberle stroled about. "It's very nice to be back in Victoria," he said. "It's a lovely city."

He spent last summer here, playing in A Man for All Seasons and Twelfth Night, at Uvic.

'Vancouver Group Understood Play'

Tragedy, both in the real and in the classic sense, opened the Dominion Drama Festival Sunday.

The words about tragedy were used by adjudicator Marius Goring to describe August Strindberg's The Father, presented by Vancouver Little Theatre.

RIGHT WAY

"Here was a cast that clearly understood and felt this play, in the right way," said the adjudicator.

The play is set in Strindberg's Sweden in 1887. It concerns the destruction by women of a man dependent on women.

MADNESS

An army captain's wife puts doubts in her husband's mind about the paternity of his daughter, and drives him to madness.

"Strindberg had madness in him," said Mr. Goring. "He knows himself. He was one of the greatest self-analysts of all time. Strindberg always described something of himself in his plays."

The adjudicator criticized the set; he said Strindberg speci-cally demanded realism. Departures from realism detracted from the performance.

The production was directed by John Parker. The adjudicator suggested the director could have helped the actors more in early scenes.

MOVING PERFORMANCE

Mr. Goring said Peter Jaskier, as The Captain, "was moving."

But he said the actor should have been more of a strong soldier.

Barbara Dahlquist, as the Captain's wife, was praised for her cold strength.

John Read, as the pastor, "should have been more obviously the wife's brother."

Mr. Goring said Frank Crowson as the doctor was excellent.

"There was a real Swede. A very impressive performance. He can listen to what other people are saying on the stage."

The adjudicator said it was a "splendid beginning to the festival."

Children's Theatre Assessed

The formula for children's theatre contains too much pabulum.

That was one agreement reached during a panel on theatre for children at University of Victoria.

SUBSTANCE NEEDED

The group found writers are not putting enough substance into work for children, to balance the pure entertainment content.

PANEL

It was sponsored by Canadian Child Drama Association, and chaired by Joy Coghill, Vancouver.

Other panel members, Stuart Baker, Victoria; Margaret Faulkes, Great Britain; Donald Wetmore, Halifax; Florence James, Regina; John Madill, Edmonton.

They discussed an exciting trend in producing plays for children.

ARCH FALLS

The old proscenium arch is gone, the stage is thrust out into the audience, the playing style is expressionistic, rapport is reached quickly with the audience, the children are asked to participate, and audiences are kept fairly small.

Daughter Recounts Mother's Act

Dying Girl Hit Twice with Book

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. (UPI)—Fifteen-year-old Stephanie Baniszewski testified Monday that her mother struck Sylvia Likens in the face twice with a book last October as the 16-year-old girl lay dying in the Baniszewski home.

Stephanie told a criminal court jury that she saw her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Baniszewski, 37, strike Sylvia several times with a paddle and once "my mom was burning Sylvia's fingers with a match."

Stephanie, a pretty blonde, broke into tears when her mother's attorney accused her of making a deal for herself at the expense of her family.

FIVE ON TRIAL

Mrs. Baniszewski, her daughter Paula, 18, her son John, 13, and two 15-year-old neighbors, Richard Hobbs and Coy Hubbard, are on trial on charges of first degree murder in the alleged torture death of Sylvia, a boarder in the Baniszewski home.

Stephanie, who also faces first degree murder charges, has been granted a separate trial. She testified as a rebuttal witness for the state after the defence rested its case in the trial, now in its fifth week.

Stephanie detailed the last hours of Sylvia's life without breaking down, but she sobbed when her mother's lawyer, William Erbecker, spoke accusingly to her.

"The only thing I'm trying to do is to help everybody," Stephanie cried.

"Yourself," Erbecker corrected her.

"I don't care what happens to me," Stephanie said. "If I had been offered a deal, I would have refused it."

Stephanie said that her mother accused Sylvia of being pregnant and of stealing things. She said she did not think either accusation was true. An autopsy showed Sylvia was not pregnant.

SYLVIA IN DAZE
Stephanie said that on Oct. 26, the day Sylvia died, she returned home from school and found other members of the family down in the basement with Sylvia, who apparently was in a daze.

"Mom said something was wrong with Sylvia," Stephanie said. "Mom said John was going to wash her off some." Stephanie said she went back to the basement and saw John turning a hose on Sylvia. She said she told him to turn it off.

Stephanie said she and Hobbs finally got Sylvia upstairs to the bathroom and that with John's help she put Sylvia in a tub of water, they got her out and put dry clothes on her.

'GOT HYSTERICAL'

"Mom came upstairs. She got hysterical. She said Sylvia was faking. She hit Sylvia with a book in the face two times as she was lying on the mattress," Stephanie said.

Stephanie testified that Sylvia's eyes were open, but "she looked foggy." She said she kept saying, "Take me home. Stephanie. I wish my dad was here. I want to go home."

Stephanie said, "Then all of a sudden she did not seem to be breathing."

'DID NOTHING'

She said she and Hobbs both attempted artificial respiration.

"Sylvia started breathing again. I figured when the police came they would try to bring her back. They got there but they didn't do anything. They said she was dead," Stephanie said.

Self-Styled Psychoanalyst Convicted on Four Counts

MONTREAL (CP)—Andre LaRiviere, 48, a self-styled psychoanalyst who is before the courts on 50 different moral charges, was convicted Monday of performing an abortion and on three other charges.

Judge Omer Cote of St. Jerome, Que., convicted LaRiviere of conspiracy, performing an abortion, fraud and procuring, each.

Judge Cote gave his verdict in a 54-page judgment as LaRiviere sat in the prisoner's box, carefully taking notes.

Two of the charges, performing an abortion and conspiracy to perform an abortion, are both punishable by up to life.

The other charges carry a maximum sentence of 10 years.

Judge Cote postponed sentence until Crown Prosecutor Jean Guy Boillard and three defence lawyers submit written notes on the case.

All testimony was given behind closed doors. In his judgment, Judge Cote referred to key witnesses by initials and ordered their names not be published.

None Injured By Quake

TOKYO (AP)—An earthquake shook Tokyo at 9:59 a.m. Monday.

The tremor caused large buildings to sway slightly, but no damage or casualties were reported.

Election Two-Party Fight

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—The May 30 Prince Edward Island provincial election will be a straight two-party fight between the Progressive Conservatives and the Liberals.

Nominations closed at 4 p.m. EDT Monday, with 64 candidates in the field—a full slate of 32 from both the PCs and Liberals. Political observers had declined to predict a two-way fight earlier because the New Democratic Party had been considering fielding candidates in a few ridings.

Conservative Premier Walter R. Shaw called the election April 16. His government held 17 of the 30 seats in the last legislature, with the Liberal opposition holding the other 13.

The Conservatives in the last election—Dec. 10, 1962—won 19 seats, with the Liberals winning the others. However, the government's majority was cut to four when the Liberals won two byelections last year.

Mr. Shaw, at 78 Canada's oldest premier, will be running in Queens 1st, the seat he held in the last House. He has been a member since 1959 when the PCs ended 24 years of Liberal rule.

Liberal Leader Alex B. Campbell, a 33-year-old lawyer, will run in Prince 5th, a seat he won in a 1965 byelection.

'Mr. Education' Wore Many Hats

As a teacher, school administrator and author of several text books, John Gough has been "Mr. Education" in Greater Victoria as far back as anyone can remember.

His resignation, submitted to school board Monday, ends a career of 43 years in education. (See page 19).

He taught at Sir James Douglas and Boys' Central schools from 1923 to '27. He was at Vic High from 1928 to 1931.

From then until 1942 he taught teachers at the provincial Normal School, and many of his students are still in district schools.

In his time as an administrator here he has seen the school population triple.

Education runs in the whole Gough family. His wife, Dorothy, was a teacher at Girls' Central elementary school.

His daughter Sylvia, prior to her marriage, taught at Colquhoun Junior High. Son Barry taught at Vic High last year and is now doing graduate work in the U.S.

From 1942 to '46 Mr. Gough was Saanich's municipal school inspector.

When urban Saanich became part of the Greater Victoria School District in 1946, Mr. Gough was appointed assistant municipal inspector.

In 1953 he was named district superintendent of schools. He is the author of three social studies texts, including The Story of British Columbia.

His 20 years in the school board office in Craigdarroch Castle were in the same building where he took his first two years of university education when it was the home of Victoria College.

Preston and Mitchell

Old Home Week

Manager Keeps His Star Busy

By TONY DILLON-DAVIS

It's old home week for Dean Preston, Guy Mitchell's manager.

Mr. Mitchell is featured entertainer at the Victoria Exhibition.

Dean Preston, his manager, was born in Vancouver 30 years ago, and attended University School in Victoria.

After leaving school, he carried copy for Victoria Press Ltd., then served in the army before turning to show business.

SKY DIVING

In 1961, he was back in Victoria, this time to found the Silk Angels Sky-Diving Club.

Sky-diving put a stunning bet in his pocket, and in 1962 he was doing all of the stunt work for The Littlest Hobo television series.

From The Littlest Hobo he went to McGowan Productions, producers of the Dan's Valley Days series, as a junior man.

HAPPENED FAST

Then things started to happen fast.

He had known Guy Mitchell for about six years by October, 1965.

"Guy hadn't cut a record in five years, and he didn't want to. He was happy just making around his ranch in Chatsworth, Calif.," Mr. Preston said Monday.

"I said, 'Come on, you're only 33 years old. Cut some records.'"

RECORDING

And Dean Preston found himself Guy Mitchell's manager.

A recording contract with Warner Brothers soon followed.

Now Mr. Preston has formed a production company with Carl Chandler, associate producer of the Hobo series, and Alan Houghton of Vancouver's Hollywood film company, to make movies and film a projected television series in B.C.

After the exhibition, Mr. Preston and Mr. Mitchell head for New York and Toronto, then to Warner Brothers studios for a recording session, then to the Pacific for a six-week tour, back to Warner's, then to Vancouver for shooting.

Two Petitions to Settle Water Piping Controversy

A piped fresh water supply for Prospect Lake residents will depend on the success of two petitions to be circulated in the area, Saanich council decided Monday night.

Two local improvement petitions with estimates will be prepared by Municipal Clerk Gordon Hayward.

Lake resident Norman Britnell agreed to council's request that he look after the circulation of one petition, and the other is to be located in the store at the corner of Prospect Lake and Goward Roads.

VOTE

Coun. Ed Lum said earlier that he believed the water supply was quite necessary, but in view of the pro and con feelings of the people, he felt the question should be put to an area vote.

It was also suggested that council initiate the action.

The municipal clerk explained that if this was council's wish, all that was necessary was for council to give due notice of its intention.

PETITION

"At least 50 per cent of the land-owners, representing 50 per cent of the land value, must petition against the initiation to have it stopped," he said.

A local improvement petition initiated by the residents requires two-thirds of the residents' signatures to pass, he added.

Three years ago, a petition to bring fresh water to lakeside residents was turned down because it received fewer than a dozen signatures.

Coun. Edith Gunning said that the cost to bring the water into the lake would be in line with cost to that being paid by Central and North Saanich residents.

Council also passed a motion by Coun. William Noel that the Metropolitan Board of Health inspect the septic tanks at the lake, and take remedial action at the owners' expense.

SPACE SHORTAGE

A bid for a pet burial park at 567 Old West Saanich Road was turned down by council.

Coun. Gunning said she was not in favor of pet burial parks in Saanich.

It is coming to the time when there is hardly enough cemetery space for humans, she said.

Creek-Diking

Plans call for the raising of certain parts of River Road and the diking of Kitsauks Creek by the provincial highways department.

Ottawa has agreed to pay $202,500 of the total cost. Alberni will pay up to $125,000 and the provincial government will pay the rest.

13-Year-Old Girl Gunman's Shield

VANCOUVER (CP) — A gunman used a 13-year-old girl as a shield Monday night during a drugstore holdup that netted him $125.

Police said the man walked behind Debbie Clark, poked a sawed-off shotgun between the girl's arm and body, then told clerk Mrs. Bertha Sonne to hand over money.

When Mrs. Sonne didn't obey the command quickly, the bandit scooped the money from the till himself, slugged store manager Harris Peterson and fled on foot.

Flooding Control Nearer

Flood control measures will soon be carried out in the low-lying area of Alberni where excessive damage was caused by a tidal wave in April 1964.

Resources Minister Williston was authorized by a cabinet order Monday to complete an agreement with Alberni on the $540,000 project which will involve the city, the provincial government and the federal government.

Commons Told

Controls Sought For LSD

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is studying special measures to stop the smuggling and illicit sale of the drug LSD. Health Minister MacEachen told the Commons Monday. He gave no indication what the special measures would be. The minister said his department and the RCMP are concerned about the illegal traffic of LSD, which produces hallucinations.

Use of the drug was not general in Canada, but appeared to be increasing. LSD was potent and dangerous when used without medical or clinical supervision.

He said there had been cases of "psychotic breakdown" among people taking LSD for "kicks."

There was a growing interest in the drug among people who were not under medical care, as a result of misleading publicity about the drug's pleasurable effects.

The RCMP was trying to eliminate illicit LSD supplies.

Mr. MacEachen recalled that sale and distribution of LSD was prohibited in 1963 in Canada, except for small quantities used by approved institutions for clinical research.

Poison Probe Ordered

VANCOUVER (CP)—Toxicological examination has been ordered to determine whether LSD or any other type of drug contributed to the death of William A. Stewart, 35.

He died in hospital Saturday after police found him on the street, apparently suffering from hallucinations.

Police said Monday a preliminary autopsy showed he probably died of degeneration of the liver and a kidney condition.

But he had told someone while in hospital that he had been given four LSD pills and had swallowed three of them.

A search of his room and belongings failed to uncover any pills.

Banks Hold Billions

OTTAWA (CP)—Chartered banks hold a whopping $3,758,609,000 worth of marketable Canadian government securities.

The information was given Monday in Commons returns to questions by Roland Godin (Creditiste-Portneuf).

Finance Minister Sharp said in one written reply that the country has no debt with either the U.S. or Britain.

OWES NOTHING

The other reply dealt with sums owed to eight Canadian chartered banks—one of them the U.S.-controlled Mercantile Bank of Canada.

Mr. Sharp said Canada owes nothing to the chartered banks as a result of direct borrowing. However, the banks did hold "large amounts" of government of Canada marketable securities.

This included $1,377,536 in treasury bills, $943,184,000 in direct and guaranteed securities maturing within two years and $1,437,899,000 in direct and guaranteed securities maturing after two years—a total of $3,758,609,000 as of March, 1966.

Look at Welfare State

Two B.C. Officials Studying Sweden

Social Welfare Minister Black and deputy welfare minister Ray Rickinson are spending a month in Sweden to see how things operate in a welfare state.

Premier Bennett announced Monday they will be studying Sweden's medicare and welfare programs.

He took the occasion to report also that the B.C. Medical Plan for the low-income brackets, and the aged now has 122,190 subscribers and that 256,539 individuals are covered by it.

Mr. Black and his assistant left here May 7 and are expected to return June 10.

The premier said their mission abroad tied in with the government's new policy of taking a "broad look" at its services for British Columbians.

He said the government wanted to see how welfare plans were operating abroad as well as on the North American continent.

Mr. Bennett said the B.C. Medical Plan was "doing well" and that the government was paying 90 per cent of the premiums for 53.20 per cent of its subscribers and 50 per cent for 13.73 per cent of the subscribers.

Municipality Established In Southeast

A new district municipality was established Monday in the southeastern tip of British Columbia, where the residential area of the dirty coal-mining community of Natal-Michel is being moved a few miles to a cleaner location.

The villages of Natal and Sparwood and the Michel-Natal hospital improvement district were officially dissolved by a cabinet and reincorporated as the District of Sparwood.

An interim council consisting of a reeve and six councillors was also appointed by a cabinet to govern the new community, which will be built at the Sparwood townsite a few miles from Natal-Michel.

Poor Roads, Cars, Drivers Boosting Accident Count

Premier Bennett believes that sometime ago that all government vehicles must have seat belts.

Mr. Bennett, who has double brakes and headrests in his car, said he would like to appeal through the news media for B.C.'s drivers to realize that the driver himself has a lot to do with causing accidents.

People who drive too slowly are just as much a hazard on the road as those who drive too fast and the slow drivers who don't pull over to let others pass, said the premier.

Nothing with satisfaction the interest now being shown in the United States on car design, he said Monday, "I'm pleased that instead of speed and color, the emphasis will be on safety."

Racing Still On Top

NEW YORK (AP)—Fewer people went to thoroughbred race tracks last year but horse racing held its place as the top U.S. spectator sport, according to a recent survey.

The 19th annual survey of sports attendance by the Morning Telegraph and Daily Racing Form showed Saturday that racing popularity stood off a strong challenge by both baseball and football for top rank.

TWO TO ONE

The tracks, thoroughbred and harness, drew a total of 67,638,212 spectators.

This compares with the 33,630,515 who saw all the baseball games played in the two major leagues and in 18 minors, and the 32,736,450 who attended U.S. professional and college football contests.

Other figures included: Pro and college basketball, 16,841,002; greyhound racing, 10,861,750; wrestling, 4,767,000; track and field, 2,900,000; National Hockey League, 2,822,886; soccer, 2,500,000; and boxing, 1,743,000. Round figures are estimates.

FLATS GAIN

Attendance at thoroughbred tracks dropped 90,863—first loss since 1956—but harness racing had an increase of 769,423.

Flat tracks drew 40,787,009, and harness tracks 26,899,203.

With Harry Young

Few new faces emerge in the team selections for the opening matches for the Victoria District Inter Club League.

Uplands, holders for the past three years, make a start with Bob Hunt, and Eric Hilderson as their top team. They will play Laurie Kerr and Bill Court in the match at Uplands Wednesday evening against Royal Colwood.

In the champions' second string, assistant-pro Eric Wright teams up with city junior champion Don Bilsborough and will face Vic Painter and Don Ross.

Perhaps Uplands' strongest team is placed in the third couple. Here, Gordon Fellow and Frank Scroggs are to meet Ricky Kent and George Andrews. In addition, to the best-ball, four-ball score, singles matches are also played.

The Victoria club, which is at home to Gorge Vale, has placed its 1965 champion, Bob McKean, in the top spot with George Bigelow as his partner. They are to tackle Laurie Carroll and Lex Sutcliffe, respectively.

This will be a first appearance on the Gorge team for Carroll. He has already been a member of winning teams with Victoria and Uplands.

In the second four-ball at Victoria, the home club puts up the first father-son combination of the tournament when professional Paul Trapp partners son Vaughan against Art Donaldson and Dave Fanthorpe, who have always been a hard-to-beat pair.

The final match brings together Bill McColl and Doug Munro for Victoria and Mel Carlow and Allan McLeod for Gorge Vale.

The matches start at 5:30, or earlier if the players are ready. One point goes to the winner of each best-ball match and one point for each singles victory.

Golf in Victoria is losing another of its outstanding players at the end of next month.

Art Donaldson is leaving Gorge Vale to become greens superintendent at Vancouver Capilano after having held a similar position at Gorge Vale for the past six months.

"It was an offer I just could not turn down," said Art, who has been a dominant figure in Victoria golf for the past 10 years. Only last summer he was reinstated from professional to amateur ranking by the RGCA.

Gorge Vale has not yet decided upon a successor as head of their greens staff.

The Royal Colwood club is also in the midst of the task of finding someone to replace Bill Peasner as secretary manager. Bill, who is taking up a business post in the city, will stay with Colwood until his successor is ready.

Unstoppable Larry McCoey and Royal Johnson defended their senior buttons successfully for the 11th time when they beat Chris Archer and Bob Wakelin of Gorge Vale at the 15th hole at Royal Colwood.

Next challengers are their Colwood rivals Don Ross and Harry Pike. They will play at Gorge Vale.

Mets Gain Respectability But Fans Remain Loyal; Series Attracts 144,564

They didn't get too much help at the start from the established clubs but major league baseball's four expansion clubs have at least gained respectability — and that includes the New York Mets.

Only Washington Senators have had undue difficulties so far this season but despite this the four expansion clubs have now a combined 56-41 record. Houston Astros are running second in the National League and the California Angels are fourth in the American League.

DOESN'T MATTER

The Mets are only 11-12, but that's sensational for them and they remain the biggest success story of them all.

Success on the field has not dimmed their lustre one iota. The fans who used to come out and get some strange satisfaction out of watching them lose are just as unimpressed now that the Mets have managed field respectability.

There were 55,226 of them out at Shea Stadium on Sunday, and they made it a noisy afternoon as the Mets took the rubber game of the three-game set against the league-leading San Francisco Giants.

That brought the attendance for the three games to 144,564, which is more than at least two National League clubs have drawn for the season to date.

And the fans got themselves some great baseball. The Mets

Thomas lost the doubles in a shoot-off with Herb Bate. Bate also won the handicap event. Alan Ford hit 48 out of 50 to take "B" division. N. Swart had 47 for the "C" title, and D. Reed won the "D" event with 45.

Meet the new Johnson 20-when you're miles from nowhere,

you can count on it to get you back.

Johnson builds 16 horsepower since 1956 models—all use 50-1 gal.-oil mixtures—all offer 2 year warranty. 100, 80, 60, 40, 30, 20, 15, 10, 5, 3. Show room models: 80, 120, 150, 200 horsepower.

Meet the new Johnson 20 hp.

This rig can easily ski one adult or two kids with power to spare. It doubles as a family motor and a fishing motor. As do all Johnsons, the 20 offers you an immense feature—absolute dependability.

Ask anyone who owns a Johnson—they'll tell you it never quits when the going gets rough.

Til now, one hundred have been cranky, selfish engines demanding special gas and oil. Johnson's new 100 uses regular low-cost car gas and easy-to-obtain outboard oil mixed 50 to 1. Even more important, the 100 uses 28% less fuel than any motor in its class. More news. This year Johnson introduces an 80 hp. in two models. Both 100 and 80 have Johnson's famous electric clutch.

The Johnson V-80 is a family powerhouse with a foam-lined engine cover for extra quietness. Electric starting is standard. Also available: the world's most popular outboard—the Johnson 40 in 3 models: manual start, electric start, and exclusive Electronic drive.

People who prefer smaller boats should consider the Johnson 33 hp. motor—it's a real cool for pontoon, raft, houseboat and day cruiser power.

The Johnson 2 1/2 could easily be called the best fishing motor ever made. It idles so slowly you can almost count the propeller revolutions. Because it's a low-profile engine, you can cast over it sitting down. It's so well balanced that it carries and steers easily. Other compact models include the 8, 9, and 3 hp. sizes. The 3 is a twin cylinder motor—very smooth running.

Vindication for Goalkeeper As Kings Take Junior Title

TORONTO (CP) — Led by players from the Estevan Bruins who had been charged with "choking up" the series, Edmonton Oil Kings won the Canadian junior hockey championship for the second time in four years by defeating Oshawa Generals, 2-1, on Sunday.

Decision gave the Memorial Cup to the Western team in the sixth game of the final. The Oil Kings have been in the final in each of the last seven years but their only previous victory came in 1963, when they defeated Niagara Falls Flyers.

It was the first victory for a western team on Eastern ice since 1948, when Port Arthur Bruins won.

Tardy Glance at Film Costs Track $1,861

CALGARY (CP) — A mistake by judges in the fourth race at Victoria Park Saturday cost the Western Canada Racing Association $1,861.20.

Moohin Minnie won the race by five lengths. Reconsideration was second and the judges called Plucky Arson third.

The results were posted as official but when judges examined photos they found that Plucky Arson had not finished third—he had been nosed out by Moon Cover.

General Manager Lou Davies immediately announced that show tickets would be paid off on both Plucky Arson and Moon Cover.

It meant no less to show ticket holders on other money finishers but the Moon Cover betters received $3.40 for each $2 bet.

The mistake cost the track $1,861.20.

Some lessons we've learned about making small cars for Canadians.

Lesson 1. Build them in Canada. That's where the rugged weather is.

Lesson 2. Watch your paint. Use 5 separate coats of Canadian primer and paint, after rustproofing the bodies 6 times.

Lesson 3. Offer something unusual. Like a small car automatic for around $2,000.

Lesson 4. Make it good-looking. A small car doesn't have to be ugly to be well engineered.

Lesson 5. Give it a great independent suspension. Canadians have a knack for leaving the beaten path.

Lesson 6. Make the seats convertible to beds. A lot of Canadians are campers.

Lesson 7. Put in 4-wheel disc brakes, and offer a 4-speed synchromesh gearbox. Canadians are a sporty group.

Lesson 8. Keep at least a million dollars worth of spare parts. And keep them available everywhere in Canada.

Lesson 9. Put in an engine that likes to be driven hard. Canadian roads are long and Canadians like to move along.

Lesson 10. Install a heater as large as most domestic big cars. Put in a booster fan and outlets for back seat passengers. Canada is a frosty country.

Lesson 11. Keep your prices down and your engineering quality up. There's a lot of competition.

These are lessons we've learned in Canada. This is the Renault 10 Major.

Brazil Worries Spain

Spain, the defending European Zone champion, was brought to within one game of elimination, and Britain survived a Hungarian challenge in Davis Cup tennis competition Monday.

Santana's loss to Koch marked the first time the

Unlicensed 20 Years, Driver Jailed

A driver who gave a breathalyzer reading of .32 per cent was sentenced in central magistrate's court Monday to 28 days in jail.

Richard Sawyer, 3117 East Sooko, pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and driving while disqualified.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Sawyer hit the rear of a car which was stopping for a red light on Pandora Sunday night.

POOR SIGHT

Mr. Birkett said Sawyer told police he had been driving for 20 years without a licence.

He said Sawyer failed to qualify for a driver's licence in 1964 because of poor eyesight.

Magistrate William Ostler jailed Sawyer for 14 days on each count and barred him from driving anywhere in Canada for 18 months.

A man who swore two false affidavits was jailed for 18 months on two counts of making false declarations.

Herbert Caffery of Milne's Landing had been found guilty last week. He was acquitted on a charge of fraud.

The Crown claimed that Caffery had sworn the false affidavits June, 1965, to get letters of administration to his parent's estate.

'FAMILY FEUD'

Defence counsel Dermot Owen-Flood said the offence was completely out of character and there was a "harsh and nasty element throughout . . . of a family feud."

Magistrate Ostler said that a fine would be inappropriate and said the offence involved "the sanctity of the oath."

A charge of theft by conversion against Walter McKay, 3246 Alder, was dismissed by Magistrate Ostler.

The Crown claimed that McKay had converted to his own use $1,568 received from customers of Debonair Distributors, 943 Yates.

Magistrate Ostler said the Crown had failed to prove the charge beyond a reasonable doubt.

William Flowers of Lake Cowichan was given a nominal sentence of one day and fined $100 for the theft of a $169 jacket.

Flowers had been found guilty last week of stealing the jacket from Woodward Stores, 3128 Douglas, April 16.

Wesley Everitt hit another car as he left the Halfway House Saturday night.

Everitt, Work Point Barracks, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was fined $350. His licence was suspended.

$50 Fine For Punch

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Kline, 42, was fined $50 when he appeared in police court charged with common assault in connection with an attack on city police constable John Flater, struck when a group of prisoners were being led to an elevator at city jail.

No nagging backache!

She used to be bothered by backaches and tired feeling. When she learned that irritation of the bladder and urinary tract can result in backaches and tired feeling, she took Dad's Kidney Pills. Smart girl. Dad's Kidney Pills stimulate the kidneys to help relieve the condition causing the backaches and tired feeling. Soon she felt better — rested better. If you are bothered by backaches, Dad's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dad's. Now learn the good money.

He pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was fined $300. His licence was suspended.

A driver who was stopped after police had seen his car weave its way along Rose Sunday night gave a breathalyzer reading of .22 per cent.

Louis Bousquet, 740 Hillside, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was fined $350. His licence was suspended.

Dennis Goudie, 171 West Coast, was fined $350 for impaired driving. He had pleaded guilty last week.

Goudie was also placed on a $250 bond for six months and allowed to drive for business purposes.

Alma Allard, 230 Gorge, was also placed on a $250 bond for six months and allowed to drive for business purposes after she was convicted of impaired driving.

She was fined $350.

Court was told that she backed into a car outside the city police station April 4.

Peter Lindley, 20, had two cases of beer and two bottles of wine in his possession when stopped by police April 30.

Lindley, 950 Arundel, pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor and was fined $35.

John Clark, 18, 1313 Johnson, was fined $35 for being a minor in possession of liquor. He also pleaded guilty to allowing another person to use his driver's licence and was fined $35.

821 Princess, were fined $75 each for dangerous driving.

Jazz Chamber Music

City's Concertgoers Enjoy Something New

By WILLIAM THOMAS

It's not too often concertgoers in Victoria are able to be in on something new and exciting but Sunday afternoon proved one of these rare occasions.

Chamber music played well in a rare and satisfying experience. Jazz chamber music is even more elusive and equally satisfying.

Sunday we heard Dave Pepper and his octet show just what can be done with standard melodies when a skilled arranger is complemented with sound musicianship.

SENSED CALIBRE

Mr. Pepper gave us the excitement. The audience, regular symphony patrons for the most part, sensed the calibre of the musicianship and applauded accordingly.

The jazz octet took the melody line from the Fred Astaire movie hit Change Partners but that was all they took.

The music was pure Pepper. Ensemble playing and the solo breaks were uniformly excellent. We really must hear more from this group. This is a great brand of jazz chamber music.

Dave Pepper

Needless to say Robin Wood was enjoying himself with the Greig piano concerto.

He gave the familiar music with the jazz octet. The concert was memorable if only for discovering them for local audiences.

He took a flock of bows but declined an encore which was perhaps as well as the program lasted a full two hours.

The symphony jazz ensemble tried their hand at Dixieland with the accent on novelty. It was never jazz but it was certainly fun.

AUDIENCE DELIGHTED

Otto Werner Mueller worked manfully at the piano which delighted the sparse audience.

The afternoon concluded with Hans (Slide) Siegrist and his German beer garden band, complete with steins and lederhosen. They seemed to enjoy themselves immensely.

The concert, arranged by Arne Bo, was in aid of the Gruber Scholarship Fund with the musicians donating their services.

BOOST FOR FUND

It is expected that $2,000 will be added to the fund when proceeds from the concert Monday are included with the private donations to this collection for young musicians.

We must hear more from Dave Pepper and Bobby Herriot with the jazz octet. The concert was memorable if only for discovering them for local audiences.

Diefenbaker Timing Ideal for Funnyman

TORONTO—Rich Little, an Ottawa comedian, says John Diefenbaker would make a good comedian.

"Diefenbaker is a very funny man. He has great timing—that's the important thing with a comic."

Nootka Band Planning Musical Production

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first musical production in British Columbia with an all-Indian cast will be staged here June 3-4, the sponsoring Northwest Indian Cultural Society announced Monday.

The show, with the theme "They Were a Happy Singing People," has been put together by George Chutei, a Nootka from the Alberni Valley.

Members of the Nootka band will dance to the accompaniment of a poetic narrative written by Mr. Chutei. The Whouat Dancing Society from Alberni, a professional group, will stage the finale, with a "Wawanasang" or warrior dance.

The society will call the production the Centennial Indian Festival.

Attendance Records Fall as Exhibition Opens

A record-breaking first day launched the Victoria Exhibition Monday.

More than 7,500 pushed through the gates, 900 more than the first day of last year's fair.

In some areas, the crowds worried exhibitors.

For example, exhibitors near the curling rink stage have had their booths shuffled away from the stage.

Crowds of teen-agers dancing and listening to the rock-and-roll music of the Pharaohs and The Conformists forced the move.

The fair was officially opened at 7:45 p.m. by Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes.

After the opening, Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes, and Mayor and Mrs. A. W. Toome toured the grounds with fair director Don Mathison and Jaycee President Brian Small.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes ducked inside the Jaycee hotdog stand, and the Lieutenant-Governor spent a few minutes taking orders for the Jaycees.

At last year's exhibition, Mr. Pearkes was made an honorary member of Victoria Jaycees.

In other fair news — Jaycees have ordered six miles of hotdogs and are using about 60,000 staples on tinsel around a fountain.

Teams keep stapling the tinsel because it keeps blowing away.

In agriculture — Woodwyn Farms of Saanichton won the Aberdeen Angus cattle event, and Dick Murrey of Saanichton took the Jersey event.

Wednesday is for some children and old folks.

Old-age pensioners with cards can get in the fair main gates free.

Crippled or retarded children, accompanied by parents or a sponsoring organization, pay nothing for admission, rides, hotdogs or pop.

Mr. Douglas, Pia Christensen, Mr. Small, Mr. Mathison share joke.

'Wishbone Government' Attacked by Douglas

Canadian lawmakers have been wasting their time on "scandal, muckraking and character assassination" while important legislation goes by the boards, New Democratic Party leader J. C. Douglas said in Victoria Monday.

He dismissed the Munsinger affair with a few dry cracks about Ottawa being the "city of sin, sex and security."

"The tragedy of Canada is not that we don't have a majority government. There's no problem in getting legislation through if it is any good," Mr. Douglas told about 600 Victorians in Central Junior high school.

He said important legislation like the new Bank Act, medical care and aid to students, had not been brought before the House.

Mr. Douglas described Canada as a ship adrift in a storm with the captain sleeping in his cabin.

Canada is drifting, he said, from crisis to crisis.

"The current crisis is inflation," Mr. Douglas said the government had reacted by instituting a tight money policy and hiking income taxes.

According to Mr. Douglas, the government is taking the wrong people.

"The taxpayers will get a 10-per-cent increase in taxes.

"The big corporations will get a five-per-cent increase, which the government will give back to them in 18 months."

FIGHT INCREASES

He said the government should be fighting company price increases which boost the cost of living, demanding that the companies give reasons for increases, as was done in the U.S.

Turning to world affairs, he said Canada must be ready to criticize the U.S. when she feels the U.S. is wrong.

"The U.S. has a government with a backbone. All we've got is a government with a wishbone."

U.S. policies in Viet Nam would have been fine 20 years ago "when there was a real danger of communism conquering the world by armed might."

But times changed, the cold war thawed, the world was no longer divided into two camps. Instead, there had been a fragmentation process eating away at both sides, he said.

"Canada could play a role in world affairs out of all proportion to our numbers," he said, because Canada had no axe to grind.

"HI, TOMMY"

Mr. Douglas walked into a storm of handshakes. "Hi, Tommy" and old friends from the Prairies at Memorial Arena Monday afternoon.

Pausing to talk with almost every second person along his way, he had time for a brief look at Arena displays before opening the China-Canada Friendship Association booth.

Trustees Stunned

School Superintendent Quits As Policy Clashes Hinted

By BILL STAVDAL

John Gough, district superintendent of schools since 1953 and an educator here for 43 years, turned in a surprise resignation Monday.

Mr. Gough, who was two years away from compulsory retirement age, stunned the Greater Victoria School Board with his announcement.

The resignation, delivered calmly but with suppressed emotion, is believed to stem from a series of quiet disputes with the school board over control of policy-making and administration.

EMPIRE BUILDING

Earlier in the school board meeting, Mr. Gough protested board chairman John Porteous' suggestion a few days ago that there might be "empire-building" in the school district staff.

Mr. Gough assured the board that Mr. Porteous' remarks did not cause his resignation.

He said he announced his resignation to the Department of Education earlier in the day.

'TIME HAS COME'

"I think that in the interest of myself and my family, the time has come for me to resign," said the 62-year-old superintendent.

His resignation is effective at the end of July, though Mr. Gough offered to stay on longer to assist in the transition to new quarters this fall.

The board accepted the resignation "with regret."

Changes in the school board's policy of appointing school principals may have precipitated the resignation.

COMMITTEE

Such appointments were formerly made on recommendation of Mr. Gough, who almost always chose principals from within the school district.

This month the board made five appointments through a screening committee on which Mr. Gough sat. It advertised outside the school district, although all five appointments came from within the area.

The Greater Victoria Teachers' Association Monday protested the new promotion policy.

In a letter to the board, it objected that the advice of the school district's directors of elementary and secondary education was not sought.

NO COMMENT

(Harry Dee, director of secondary education, resigned last week at 64. His resignation was formally accepted Monday night.)

The board received the teachers' protest without comment.

But the board refused to read two other letters of protest from the teachers and school district staff, objecting to the new policy.

STATEMENT

The teachers' association asked for a statement of promotion policy and procedures used in the screening and selection processes.

Also filed without being read was a protest from a committee of administrators — principals, supervisors and directors of education.

The committee submitted a resolution that they were "strongly opposed to the recently instituted methods by which the board makes appointments to administrative positions and requesting that any further appointments be delayed until a meeting and discussion with the board has been held."

Judge to View Cadet Corps

University of Victoria Chancellor Judge J. B. Clearhue, an old armyman, will inspect the 5 (B.C.) Field Battery, RCA, Cadet Corps at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Bay Street Armory.

A field gunner in the First World War, Judge Clearhue served for many years in the 5 Battery, attaining the rank of major.

Principle Test In Court Esquimalt Plan

On a matter of principle, Esquimalt council voted Monday night to take a resident to small debts court for non-payment of a sewer repair bill.

In a letter to council, Harman and Company, the municipal court costs would probably run higher than the amount billed to Claude Grandmaison, 838 Craigflower.

Municipal engineer John Graeme explained that in some municipalities residents were asked for a deposit before work was done, but that was not the case in Esquimalt.

"Residents are very reliable. We do the work, and if it is up to the resident, he pays, or up to the municipality, it pays," he said. He added that this was the principle on which the work had been done at Mr. Grandmaison's.

Council pondered a moment, then acting reeve James Bryant observed that there was a principle involved.

"I can't see why council should write off one debt when other residents have to pay," said Coun. Walter Lock.

Centennial Pool

Langford Member Annoyed by Board

By NANCY BROWN

Impatience with the regional services board was expressed Monday night by Langford board representative John S. Williams.

"I can't see why we have to get down on our hands and knees to these people to spend our own money, but it seems to be necessary," he told a meeting of the joint centennial committee of Langford, Colwood, Metcheson, Happy Valley and Glen Lake.

Mr. Williams had applied to the board for an amendment in the letters patent to enable the joint centennial project—a $200,000 swimming pool—to be financed through the board. The money would be raised only in the districts concerned.

HE'S FUZZLED

"After listening to the board through four meetings, I still don't know why they won't accept it," Mr. Williams said.

"I would say that the main objection to the application is the feeling on the part of some board members, though I find it difficult to accept, that the regional board will become the means of doing all kinds of things that the municipalities are unable to do."

"I feel that a lot of people on the board are opposing this for reasons other than those apparent on the table."

"It is very difficult for me to sit there and not say what I really think, but if I did that then I and the application would both be thrown out," Mr. Williams added.

He said he felt there had been more support for the swimming pool project at the last meeting than at any of the others.

Esquimalt council decided Monday

Council gave final reading to the amendment to the reeve and councillors' remuneration and expense bylaw Monday night.

Esquimalt's former reeve, A. C. Wurtzle, refused to accept any salary and Monday night's bylaw was to ratify the situation.

Bay Tent To Outlast Fire Rules?

By the time The Bay receives official notification that the 50-by-100-foot tent on the third floor of its Parkade is against the law, the department there will probably have no more use for it.

Fire Chief James B. Allan said Monday that inspectors from his department had visited the scene and would report to him, after which the store would be officially notified that erection of the tent was against fire regulations.

The Bay, in its application to city council, said the tent would be required for one week only.

New Housing Unit Planned For Senior Citizens' Use

A $300,000 housing development for senior citizens is planned for a 1.36-acre site on Townley between Richmond and Shelbourne.

The apartments, designed by architect Clive Campbell and sponsored by the Victoria Senior Citizens Housing Society, will include 24 bachelor suites and 14 suites for couples.

Society spokesman Foster Isherwood said Monday that tenders for the project would be called with two weeks.

RENTS $60, $80

The society hopes to rent the suites to bachelors at under $40 a month, and to couples at approximately $50.

A fund-raising campaign for the project is in progress at this week's Victoria Exhibition, where plastic bricks are being sold to fair-goers.

"The drive for funds will continue after the fair closes," Mr. Isherwood said. "The more money we can raise, the lower the rents will be."

RED CHEVRON

The development's main lounge will be named the Red Chevron lounge in honor of a bequest from the Red Chevron Association, and also the proferred support of the association, said Mr. Isherwood.

The suites will all have a living room, kitchenette with electric range and refrigerator, and private bathroom. Suites designed for couples will have a bedroom, while the bachelor suites will be of the bed-sitting room design.

The apartment building will have no basement, and heating will be electric, with each suite equipped with its own thermostat.

Ramps will be installed instead of stairways for easy access by people in wheelchairs.

Vice-Principal 40 Years

Lampson's Grand Old Man Retires

By BILL STAVDAL

After 35 years at Esquimalt's Lampson Street Elementary School, Alec Hutchinson says only one thing hasn't changed: children.

Mr. Hutchinson, 1158 Old Esquimalt Road, can make the statement with unchallenged authority.

He first walked in the doors of Lampson school in 1938, as a schoolboy of seven.

He studied there 10 years, including his high school time. He returned in 1921 as a teacher, and has spent his whole 45-year classroom career at Lampson. He's been vice-principal for 40 years.

And in June, the school's grand old man retires.

Mr. Hutchinson, who has taught three generations of Esquimalt residents, will be honored at 8 p.m. today in the school auditorium.

The old-time teacher isn't sure he likes the idea.

"I'm like an old soldier; I just wanted to fade away," he said Monday.

It's quite possible there'll be a tear in Mr. Hutchinson's eye this evening.

"After such a long association, you get to love a place," he reflected. "I may be prejudiced, but I think Lampson is a pretty good school."

He remembers 13 principals since he began as a student there. Because of an odd accommodation situation, Mr. Hutchinson even took high school education at Lampson.

He strengthened his ties with Lampson school by marrying one of its teachers, the former Olive Severs.

He's a conservative in educational matters, distrusting

Tea Marks Birthday

Highlights of the past 50 years were recounted at the recent anniversary tea of the Robert Burns McMicking chapter, IOOE. The affair was held at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Mrs. P. J. Balagno, a charter member, told of the founding of the chapter in 1916 and the naming of it after her grandfather, Robert Burns McMicking, an early pioneer. Mrs. E. E. Heath was first regent of the chapter.

From its early years the chapter has been interested in work with the blind. Recently a braille and kin were presented to this cause.

During the afternoon Mr. David Palmer played the piano. Miss Christine McNab presented Mr. Palmer with a bursary to further his musical career.

Mrs. A. McFarlane, regent; Mrs. E. E. Heath and Mrs. P. J. Balagno welcomed past and present members.

Mrs. W. J. Williams and Mrs. Elsie Lowthian both past regents poured tea at an attractively set table centred with an anniversary cake.

Charter members present were Mrs. W. J. Seymour, Salt Spring Island; Mrs. M. Hirst and Mrs. P. J. Balagno.

quard jersey designed and made into a flowered "any age" dress. At right is a wild young dress in angora-wool jersey appliqued with contrast.

Newlyweds Motor To Niagara Falls

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rafferty Blackley motored to Niagara Falls and New York for their honeymoon following their recent marriage here in Queen of Peace Church. The bride is the former Georgina Lois McGee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. McGee, 836 Dunsmuir Street, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Blackley, Crystal Beach, Ont.

A gold lace cloth was on the altar and white baskets of white gladioli, chrysanthemums, lilies and blue iris decorated the church.

Father M. J. McNamara officiated at the nuptial mass. Robert McGee, brother of the bride, was altar boy.

The Girls' Choir sang several pieces during the wedding and soloist Patricia Mendenhall sang Ave Maria. Mrs. A. Smith was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a silk crape sheath in Empire line with lily point sleeves and bodice of fine lace. Diamante enhanced the hand-clipped lace neckline and a cathedral train in matching lace cascaded from the waistline in back. A head-dress of peau de saie roses held the bride's re-embroidered silk illusion veil—the same veil she wore when she made her first communion. For "something old" she wore a sapphire and pearl pendant which her father had given her mother on their wedding day. She carried a white prayer book topped with white roses, and a blue crystal rosary which was sent by her aunt in England.

Mrs. James Lang, matron of honor, and the Misses Clara Blackley, and Angela Caddell, bridesmaids, were in floor-length princess style gowns of blue crystal. They wore matching head-dresses of bows and silk illusion net and carried white prayer books topped with white carnations.

Flower girls, the Misses Aida Blanes and Wendy White, wore floor-length gowns of white tulle featuring bouffant skirts, crystal blue sashes and white lace collars. They wore crystal blue peau de saie roses in their hair and carried white baskets of blue and white carnations.

Mr. James Lang was best man. Ushering were Mr. John McGee and Mr. Ray Bergen. Mr. Martin Kokran proposed

Guide Commissioner Pays Official Visit

Provincial commissioner of the British Columbia Girl Guides, Mrs. J. S. Kendrick, West Vancouver, was widely entertained when she paid her first official visit to Victoria, Thursday.

That evening, commissioners, guides and other adult members of the local associations gathered in All Saints' Church Hall, View Royal, for a reception and campfire. Following the introduction of the special guest by Victoria area commissioner Mrs. H. P. McKeever, the 10th Victoria Guide Company sang campfire songs. The company topped their class in the Victoria musical festival this year and following the program, company captain Mrs. J. Ruskowski was presented with the winner's trophy by the donor, C. Mullins.

To mark her 16 years of service with the 17th Company, Salvation Army Guides, Miss J. Reading was presented with a letter of commendation from the Canadian chief commissioner by the honor guest. The evening concluded with refreshments served by the local association members and a huge campfire, conducted by Mrs. R. Frampton, St. Margaret's Company. Hostess for the evening was Mrs. S. R.

JUST COME IN
Simply apply Perform Hair Waving Lotion to your hair as you wash it, and let it dry. In the morning your hair will be wavy, without permanent waving solutions, without retreating, without damage or sticky flaky gums. In the middle of a simple combing and set even difficult to curl hair develops entrancing, fascinating waves as naturally-looking as naturally wavy hair. Most important, you don't have to put up your hair night after night, yet the waves stay in. Must up your hair as much as you like, sleep on it, let it blow in the wind... just comb and back into place full fluff and lovely curls and waves, still as natural looking as if you were blessed with wavy hair all your life. And, equally important, your hair gleams radiantly, is so soft, smooth, so natural to touch. There's none of that "dried straw" feeling you get after permanent... none of the stickiness of gums and lacquers... none of that old country "fixed set" look as you get after ordinary gummy wave sets. Safe for all types and texture hair. Will not fade or strip color from dyed or bleached hair. And, most important of all, your casual curls and waves still look as glamorous the 10th day as they do the first, yet the cost is so low it's amazing!

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I have a feeling I am on the verge of insanity. I have two major problems. First, a 16-year-old infant son who is six feet tall and weighs 218 pounds. The second problem is a 40-year-old moron—my husband.

Last evening I told my son to please straighten up his room. (It was beginning to look like a garbage dump.) He started to jump up and down like a three-year-old child and yelled "I won't! I won't! And you can't make me!" Then he turned around and kicked me in the leg.

I was shocked. When I finally gathered my wits I really gave him a piece of my mind. My husband heard me, came into the room and shouted, "For heaven's sake, Edith. He's only a child."

I told him the "child" is twice as big as I am and I'm sick of his laziness. My husband says I expect too much of the boy and this is why he is rebellious.

I'd like your opinion.
SCRANTON.

Dear Scranton: What a peachy-keen start for a thoroughly messed up life. A 16-year-old boy who kicks his mother and is then defended by his father needs plenty of help—and fast. Talk to your doctor about counselling for both babies.

Dear Ann: I need advice on how to break my husband of the habit of throwing his clothes all over the house. Tom was a bachelor (age 35) when I married him. I thought I knew him very well but I guess this is one thing you never know about a man until you live with him.

Last week I tried an experiment. For six days I left his clothes wherever he dropped them. On the bed posts this morning I counted four pairs of trousers, six shirts, six pairs of shorts and three bath towels. This does not include the stuff hanging on door knobs or thrown behind the bathroom door.

Tom and I read your column every day so please print the reply in the newspapers! P.S. I adore your answers. —CHAMBERMATRON.

Dear Chamber: This one answer you won't adore because I'm going to tell you to forget it. It takes less energy to pick up after a man than it does to try to get him to change a life-long habit.

If you have sons, teach them to put things where they belong and to pick up after themselves so their wives won't have to write to Ann Landers.

Dear Ann Landers: How does one go about telling good friends that their young son stinks? Every time this couple comes to our home and brings the boy something is missing. One day recently I had left some small change on the kitchen window sill. I know the boy took it because I saw the change when I was preparing the lemonade. The boy entered the kitchen as soon as I left. I returned five minutes later and sure enough—the money was gone. Please advise. —R.B.

Dear R.B. You haven't told me how old the boy is, and this is important. If he is seven or older, have a private talk with him—and give him another chance. If he continues to take things, you must inform his parents because he needs professional help. If he is under seven, tell his parents at once and suggest counselling.

Bride Chooses Tiered Organza

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the scene recently of the marriage of Inga Diane New Denver. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hermann Clever, Oxford Street, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George O. Hawkins, Carrick Street.

Standards of spring blooms were at the altar. The Very Rev. J. L. W. McLean officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of tiered organza over taffeta, edged with hand clipped chantilly lace. The lace bodice had lily point sleeves. A large white rose accentuated the front of the gown and a Watteau train extended from the back. A six-tiered veil misted from her tiara of rhinestones and lace.

She carried a colonial bouquet of red roses and white carnations and a stephanotis. Her jewelry was a cultured pearl necklace and earrings, the gift of the groom.

Miss Lucy Yamashita, maid of honor, wore a short full-skirted dress of aqua nylon over taffeta. Mrs. M. Kelsall chose a similar gown in yellow taffeta. Their accessories were white and they carried colonial bouquets of white carnations and yellow fresas and roses. Their pearl drop necklaces were the bride's gifts.

LONDON — Gordon MacKintosh says he sees nothing wrong about it, but his vivacious wife Hazel has decided to tame down her temptation to liven-up parties by stripping.

MacKintosh, grandson of the founder of a British candy fortune, is proud of his trim wife, whom he calls "a real ball of fire."

They are leaders in society in Devon where they live in a 13th century manor house in the heart of the English tweed-set country.

In the interest of keeping harmony, she says, however, she has decided to stop stripping.

She says the party trick is creating tension with their more sedate friends and her husband's family, too.

A few months ago Hazel shocked these guests by stripping during a dance at the Commodore Club, part of Torquay's fashionable Imperial Hotel.

Two weeks ago she did another strip-dance after the other guests had left, but the band stayed to play and cheer.

"There was nothing wrong," said MacKintosh. "It was just Hazel's way of saying 'thank you' to the band, who work while everyone else is playing."

A family of four was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday after a collision involving three cars at Shelbourne and Kenmore.

Four-year-old Robert McDowell, 2518 Fernwood, is in a fairly good condition with head injuries.

He was a passenger in a car driven by his father, Ronald, who was treated for knee and head injuries. Mrs. McDowell was treated for leg, wrist and head cuts, and their other son, Christopher, for a shin abrasion.

The other drivers involved were Roy Bishop, 4434 Majestic, and Patricia Fewang, 4667 Cordova Bay.

IN HOSPITAL

A 20-year-old woman received head injuries when the car in which she was travelling struck one car and then crashed into the Royal Confectionery, 1002 Blanshard, Sunday night.

Elaine Desjardins, 412 Dallas, is in fairly good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police said she was a passenger in a car driven by Beatrice Morris, 402 Quebec, which was in collision with a car driven by Robert Alger, 1112 Bewdley.

Gordon Sharpe, Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, received minor head cuts when his car struck a utility pole on Burnside West Saturday night.

A head-on collision on Metchoin Road Saturday night wrecked two cars but the drivers received only minor injuries.

The drivers were identified as Gordon Hemstreet, Rocky Point Road, and Evan Hodgetts, Ledsdon Road.

$817,000 for Lures

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has set aside $817,000 for the 1966-67 fiscal year to advertise the attractions of a career in the armed forces, Associate Defence Minister Cadieux told the Commons Monday.

Merchant Fleet Urged for B.C.

British Columbia should build its own merchant marine if Ottawa refuses to move in that direction, the provincial cabinet was told Monday.

The Shipyard General Workers' Federation warned that unless Vancouver port facilities were expanded and modernized the city of Seattle might soon take over the handling of such Canadian exports as wheat and coal.

In its brief to cabinet, the federation proposed:

- The provincial government should use its influence to persuade Ottawa that a Canadian merchant marine must be built.

- That if Ottawa balked at any scheme to revive the merchant marine, B.C. should set up a Crown agency and go it alone.

- The first step toward building a B.C. merchant marine should be construction of "two ultra-modern B.C. bulk carriers designed especially for the lumber trade."

- "Experience with the design and construction of new bulk carriers and their close integration with the operation of modern automated loading and unloading facilities would be extremely helpful in the modernization of the port of Vancouver."

The brief also recommended construction of a large graving dock which could repair such ships as the 40,000-ton Argyle which makes regular calls to Vancouver.

To justify the cost of such a structure, the graving dock could also be designed for shipbuilding purposes, it stated.

Federation president William Stewart of Vancouver said Premier Bennett agreed with the delegation's suggestion that Canada should have a merchant marine, but that he pointed out it was a federal government responsibility.

"But he wished us well in our endeavor and said to keep up the good work," said Mr. Stewart.

Victoria members of the seven-man delegation were Ernest Orchin, business agent for Machinists Local 3; Donald Douglas, business agent for the Shipwrights' Union, Local 3, and John Barbillion, treasurer of the Machinists, Fitters and Helpers, Local 3.

Canoes Race Saturday

Cries and chants and knifing narrow hulls will fill Brentwood Bay Saturday and Sunday, when the West Saanich Indian band holds its annual water sports meet.

Main attraction will be the 11-man war canoe races, with about a dozen entries from this area, up-island and the mainland. There will also be races with women paddling the big canoes, men's, women's and mixed double paddle classes, and men's and women's single paddle events.

3 P.M. STARTS
Activities on both days start at 2 p.m., off the beach at the foot of Stelly's Cross Road.

Dry-land events will include tribal dances, the Sla Hal bone game and the Indian Princess contest. Salmon barbecue and clam chowder will be kept steaming all day.

There will be exhibition jumps by members of the Victoria Sky Divers.

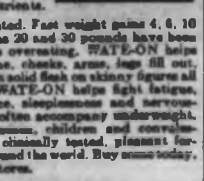

More Miners Die in Ukraine

MOSCOW (UPI)—The second mine disaster in the Ukraine in three weeks has killed and injured a number of miners, it was disclosed Monday night.

The official news agency Tass reported the Soviet government and the Soviet Communist Party had sent "profound condolences" to families of miners killed in a fire at the Artem coal mine Number 10 in the Lugansk region of the Ukraine.

We could give you a hundred reasons for buying our Sedan. Here's one.

You save $1,800.

Would you believe $1,598? How about $1,100 and change? In all honesty, we can't be too specific about how much you save. So much depends on where you live, when you buy and how you drive. But we can promise that you'll save a great deal of money. How? Well, take a look at what you buy: 4 doors, lots of leg room front and back, individual front seats, padded dash and visors, 4 speed floor shift or American Automatic, 69.5 h.p. engine and a big family-sized trunk. Sounds like a domestic car doesn't it? It performs at least as well. But it costs a whole lot less. And unless you have a very heavy foot, you should get 30 or more miles from a gallon of gas. Domestic deliver about 20. Over 5 years or 50,000 miles you save hundreds of dollars on gas, and because the engine and drive train is covered by the 5 year/50,000 mile power train warranty, you save on repair bills too. Taking everything into consideration, it's safe to say that driving the Sunbeam '1725' Sedan will save you at least $1,100—but as we said, there are ninety-nine other reasons why you should buy one. See your Sunbeam Dealer. He's the man with all the answers. One of the Sunbeam Family of Fine Performers: IMP • '1725' SEDAN • ALPINE • TIGER V8

Where can you buy a bra with stretch straps and Cordtex® inserts at anywhere near Gothic's price? And these stretch straps continue down and over the bust for complete freedom of movement, have velvety shoulder pads that prevent curling and adjustable slides. Lovely embroidered fine cotton with the new, easy to adjust Elinlock® on the straps. 30-38A, 32-38B, 32-40C & D, Bandeau, #1305, white, $3.00.

Guest speaker at Monday morning's meeting of the Christ Church Cathedral Men's Breakfast Club at the Empress Hotel was Bishop Remi De Roo.

The Catholic bishop took as his subject the effect on the Roman Catholic Church of the second Vatican Council.

He said the council had emphasized that an individual's piety on Sunday could not compensate for un-Christian behavior during the remainder of the week. He said salvation must be worked out not just in the Church but in the world.

RESPECT LAWS

The result has been a growing emphasis of the laymen's place in the Church.

Bishop De Roo said that while the Church had a duty to penetrate and perfect the world, it must have respect for the laws of the world. It must, for example, respect the laws of science.

The second Vatican council, said Bishop De Roo, also had built a new foundation for the ecumenical movement by considering the Church as the "people of God." It recognized that the Holy Spirit was at work among all who believed in Christ, regardless of their Church affiliations.

RESPONSE

The bishop said that in the matter of religious freedom, the council had attempted to catch up with democratic society but had given the term greater meaning by showing that it was not just a right but an essential part in man's effective response to God.

Buttons Next On Phones

B.C. Telephone Co. plans to start the gradual introduction of push-button telephones in 1968.

The touch-calling telephone has a panel of 10 buttons carrying the same number and letter designation as dial phones, with a zero or operator button centered beneath them.

NEW TONE

B.C. Tel reports customers who get the new telephones will hear a dial tone distinctly different from that of conventional telephones, and they will hear a series of musical notes as they use the buttons.

The first touch-calling service will be offered in Vancouver's Tri-city exchange area in 1968, and the company expects most major B.C. centres will be on the system in 1970.

Councillor To Get Painting

A painting of Victoria's first flower girl, Risha Golby, will be presented to Coun. A. R. Mebs, president of the Greater Victoria Centennial Society, at the society's office in Centennial Square at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Avis Walton, founder of the Victoria Lostbreakers Club, was instrumental in introducing Flower Girls to Victoria in 1962. She will make the presentation. The girls, dressed in costumes of 1862, spend two or three hours each day in the Inner Harbor area, helping tourists and distributing flowers.

NO STRINGS

"We feel that this no-strings-attached gesture for tourists is a great success," said Mrs. Walton.

The Flower Girl painting will be added to the display at the entrance to the centennial office.

Slice Pampas Pie

By M. V. CHESTNUT

I suppose there must be a few hot-shot green-thumbers around here who have raised Pampas Grass successfully from seed, but I am not one of them. Three times now I have imported seeds of Cortaderia argentea and sown them hopefully, and three times the attempt has been a dismal failure.

There seems to be some kind of rust disease that attacks very young seedling plants of Pampas Grass, and I have yet to find a way to bring them safely through this "measles" stage of babyhood. Fortunately, we don't have to rely upon seeds to get specimens of this noble South American plant, as it is quite easy to increase by division at this season of the year. In fact, this is just about the ideal time to do the job, as fall or winter or very early spring division is often followed by rotting in the crown.

With Pampas Grass, it is best not to dig up the parent plant as you would with most perennial clumps, for this plant resents bitterly any disturbance, and uprooting would certainly send it into a fit of the sulks. Instead, do your dividing in situ.

expose one edge of the root mass, then with a sharp knife or an old hacksaw blade, cut into the clump from two angles, taking out a wedge-shaped portion, like a piece of pie.

Lift the piece out carefully without disturbing the parent plant, using a small digging fork to lever it loose if necessary. Plant it up immediately in its new site, watering it in with a few drops of vitamin B-1 in the water. Give the leaves a squirt of Wilt-Pruf if you have any of this liquid plastic spray on hand; this prevents loss of moisture from the foliage while the roots are getting themselves established.

Fill the vacated hole in the parent clump with a mixture of equal parts fresh topsoil, peat moss and coarse sand. The old plant will soon push new roots into this delectable mixture and will soon replace the missing portion. Incidentally, you'd better wear a stout pair of gloves when working around Pampas Grass, for you can tear your hands to ribbons on the saw-tooth edges of the tough leaves.

If your polyanthus primroses didn't do as well as expected this spring, and if you have to ply them almost constantly with water to keep them from wilting, better dig one of them up and have a look at the roots. An abnormal need for water is an almost sure sign of root injury, and chances are you'll find the roots of the sick plants infested with either white grubs or root aphids.

The book says to treat for these underground pests by dissolving one tablet of bichloride of mercury in one pint of water — using a non-metallic container — and pour about one cup of the solution around the roots of each plant.

While this treatment is highly effective, bichloride of mercury scares the living daylight out of me. It is a virulent poison, extremely dangerous to have around the house, and particularly where there are small children.

In all cases where soil-inhabiting pests are suspected, I very much prefer to use chlordane, preferably the 40 per cent liquid formulation, mixed with water and applied with a watering can to drench the soil around the roots at a time when the soil is already moist. Chlordane is 70 times more toxic than DDT to most bugs and grubs, but is nothing like as dangerous as bichloride of mercury to human or animal life.

ART BUCHWALD Horrified

Swinging Mink Coat Set

WASHINGTON—Representative H. R. Gross, the Republican Congressman from Iowa, has finally blown the whistle on one of the best-kept secrets in Washington. And that is that the Johnson administration is composed of a swinging "mink coat set," which dances until three o'clock every morning through the White House halls.

The Good Congressman made a speech on the floor of the House deploring not only the swinging at the White House, but all the Dolce Vita activities that have been going on, such as Press Secretary Bill Moyers doing the Watusi and Frug, and one woman who was sent home from an opera ball because she was wearing a transparent dress which Rep. Gross said made her "half naked."

I was as shocked to read about all these goings-on as anyone.

As soon as I heard about Rep. Gross's speech I called my wife and said, "We haven't been invited to the White House this week, have we?"

"What's the matter with you?" she said. "We've never been invited to the White House."

"It's just as well," I said. "Do you know what they do there?"

"Don't tell me."

"They dance the Watusi and the Frug until three in the morning."

"That's the first good thing I've heard about the White House in months," she said.

"Thank, my sweet," I said. "The Devil may have the line tapped. Did you know that an ordained Baptist minister has been leading the dancing and doing the 'Swim,' the 'Mink,' and the 'LBJ Stomp'?"

"Heaven preserve us," my wife said. "Could it be Reverend Bill Moyers?"

"The very same," I told her. "It's as if Sadie Thompson had come back to earth and moved into the Lincoln Room of the White House."

"The LBJ crowd seemed like such nice people," my wife said.

"You never know what goes on in someone's house after the sun goes down," I told her. "Did you know that the President dances also?"

"And Mrs. Johnson and Lucretia Bird and Hubert Humphrey and Muriel."

"We shall have to pray for all of them," my wife said. "I'll make up some 'Repent' signs just in case we want to picket the White House."

"Do you know what else I found out from Congressman Gross? I discovered that the women in Washington walk around half naked in evening dresses."

"Thank heavens, you wouldn't let me buy a new evening gown," my wife said.

"Exactly what I was thinking," I replied. "We're the only ones in Washington who live in a glass house and can still throw stones."

"Is there any hope," my wife asked, "that they could change their sinful ways?"

"Not according to Congressman Gross. Once you start dancing there is no way back."

"You and I and Congressman Gross seem to be the only clean-living people in this town," my wife said.

"We're twice blessed," I said. "You don't own a mink coat and I don't dance."

"We may not have fun," my wife said, "but at least we can look each other in the eye in the morning."

Legion Taking Second Look

Virginia a Scorcher?

By ALAN FREEMAN

NEW YORK (NANA)—The Legion of Decency has screened Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, the Lia Taylor-Richard Burton movie version of the controversial Broadway play, but has reserved judgment, asking to see it again. It must be a scorcher.

Virginia Woolf is in her mid-40s and despite frequent troubles with demon rum is still a remarkably attractive woman. You'll get a good look at Veronica in a film she begins shortly in Amsterdam with Milton Berle which she hopes will signal a big-time comeback. The Day the Clown Cried features Berle as a famous clown of Jewish extraction who is forced by the Nazis to lead children into the gas chambers of a Dutch concentration camp.

Red Steiger came close to winning this year's Academy Award in The Pawnbroker, a role with auxiliary sympathetic overtones. Berle, who probably knows better than anyone in show business how to pull tears from an audience, could walk away with it next year for a deftly handled performance as a Pied Piper of death.

Marcello Mastroianni's latest film, Paranoia, which was made by Carlo Ponti, Sophia Loren's rotund husband, for release by Joseph Levine, may never be seen in this country. The movie was made in three segments, with Marcello starring with a different girl in each. The first two, co-starring Catherine Deneuve in one and a well-known European actress in the other, come from a member of Levine's staff who couldn't remember the "well-known" girl's name —are absolute bombs. Pamela Tiffin is the girl in the third segment, which, as the best of the three—might be saved, according to Pond's current thinking, and extended into a feature-length movie on its own.

Jack Lemmon will co-star in as well as co-produce the film version of the delightful Broadway comedy Luv. Walter Matthau will co-star and, surprisingly, play the role of the hook who wants to kill himself. Lemmon will be the insecure husband. The hook role seems made to order for Lemmon.

Hollywood insiders are buzzing about the young actor who dated quite openly while his actress wife was in the east attending her mother's funeral. . . . Dean Cain does an unannounced walk-on in Scully's first feature film, Birds Do It. . . . Ingrid Bergman and ex-husband Roberto Rossellini have had several meetings of late. Nothing to do with picture plans. Their 12-year-old daughter, Isabella, will shortly begin a series of treatments to correct a deformation of the spine.

Gary Lockwood, filming MGM's 2001: A Space Odyssey, in London, has had an excellent run of luck during the 70 hours producer Stanley Kubrick gives him off the set. To date, Gary has won upwards of $20,000 at the blackjack and craps tables in London's gambling establishments. It's safe to write this item, because Gary has decided to quit while he's ahead. . . . Oscar winner Lee Marvin winged back to work in London, where he's filming The Dirty Dozen, carrying his prize all the way, despite having insured it for $1,000 before leaving.

SYDNEY HARRIS Finds No Swingers

Sad Convention of Wallflowers

During the Easter weekend, I happened to be in the Miami-Fort Lauderdale area, and I drove over to the beach to watch the college students congregate for their annual spring vacation roughhouse.

After talking to a number of them, I was left with a quite different impression of the group than I had received from reading press accounts. These are pathetic, empty, aimless and essentially passive youngsters—and not at all representative of college youth today.

In the first place, many of them were not college students at all, but high school seniors of both sexes from the surrounding area. Many others were only ebullience and high spirits. They were, in the main, the rejects, the misfits, the ones alienated not only from society at large but from their own peer-group as well. It resembled nothing so much as an enormous convention of wallflowers.

And boredom was the keynote of their convention, not mischief or merriment. They milled back and forth "looking for the action"—but the genuine action-makers would sooner be caught dead than on the ocean-front at Fort Lauderdale. They resembled a huge flock of lemmings driven down to the water's edge, not knowing what to do when they got there except provoke the police into

It was a sight more poignant than annoying. These young boys and girls seemed utterly resourceless, unable to amuse themselves or one another, devoid of imagination, aims, or even much animation—just waiting for some Pied Piper to come along and lead them into the enchanted forest, where their pimples would disappear, their senses would awaken, and their fantasies would be translated into shining reality. It was all quite depressing, and the picture it presented was desperately unfair to the great mass of college youth. Some real high-jinks would have been welcome, some genuine display of animal spirits, rather than this melancholy make-believe without point or passion.

Bennett Changes Emphasis

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said Monday that the B.C. government was turning its attention from dams and blacktop to concentrate more on the care and culture of its citizens. Earlier emphasis of the present government, he said in an interview, was establishment of a "strong economic base in our province."

As highways, ferries, bridges, tunnels, railroads, pipelines and energy production, he said. "Now the main emphasis of the Social Credit government of B.C. will be on broadening services to the people."

The premier's statement came during discussion of a suggestion that British Columbia's art and cultural circles seek financial support from the government. He left the door open on that point. The question was brought up during the opening of the combined universities-Dominion Drama Festival theatre conferences held at the University of Victoria.

Tom Hendrey of Toronto, head of the Canadian Theatre Centre, had said: "As long as the government of wealthy British Columbia feels it can exist without an arts council, leadership in drama, opera and ballet will continue to be fragmented."

The premier said he had not seen the report, but that the proper procedure for seeking provincial grants was through the office of Provincial Secretary Wesley Black. Mr. Bennett added that the government would be looking into the question of the needs of the people of B.C. included in the field of the arts.

It's Go, Go! Into Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Two Gemini 9 pilots are completely set for a daring dash into space today to stage a moon-flight rendezvous rehearsal and a record 24-hour space walk. The launch of the Gemini 9 spaceship was set for 9:39 a.m. PDT, an hour and 38 minutes after the scheduled liftoff of the Agena target vehicle with which Gemini 9 is to rendezvous in space. Launch time of the Agena atop an Atlas booster rocket, is set for 8 a.m. Victoria time. The countdown on Gemini 9 to be boosted in space by a Titan II rocket, is to begin at 4:39 a.m. The spectre of bad weather in the Atlantic faded. With that hurdle past, the Gemini 9 crew, U.S. Air Force Lt.-Col. Thomas F. Stafford and Navy Lt.-Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan, breezed through final review and training sessions Monday. Their 70 hours and 40 minutes in space is a hectic, jam-packed parade of events that will see the 32-year-old Cernan manoeuvring himself solo through space Wednesday. (Continued on Page 3)

Another Vote

Liberals On Spot Today

By BON COLLISTER
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The government today faces another cliff-hanger vote over tight money that Tory George Hees warned could cause a business downturn in Canada.

Moving his first non-confidence motion since he returned to Parliament, Mr. Hees slammed the government for penalizing the small home-builder who can't raise money to go ahead.

Monday night both New Democrat and Creditist spokesmen said they would support him, making it a close shave for the minority government.

'NEGATIVE APPROACH' Mr. Hees, former Tory trade minister, said the government, in tight money and denying builders and prospective homeowners mortgage funds, was taking a "negative approach" to economic problems and seriously impeding the development of the nation.

He unveiled a four-point manifesto to help the small homeowner:

Mortgages under the National Housing Act should be re-directed to the average home, rather than the middle or executive-type homes — "which is the case today."

Insurance companies, which seek insurance business all across Canada, should be required to invest mortgage funds in towns and rural areas "as a duty." These, he said, are the areas hit hardest.

Interest rates should be reduced to six per cent, allowing banks to participate under the National Housing Act. (The NHA rate was raised to six and three-quarter per cent last year. When the rate went above six per cent, Mr. Hees argued, the banks were eliminated from NHA financing. The banks have a six per cent ceiling interest rate.) (Continued on Page 3)

Southern Buddhists Join in Demands

SAIGON (AP)—The powerful Buddhist leadership here gave all Buddhist monks a ready support to South Viet Nam's Monday night and demanded that Premier Nguyen Cao Ky withdraw troops he sent to wrest control of Da Nang for his military regime. To die for the cause, a spokesman said.

In Da Nang, immolation platforms were thrown up at a pagoda and monks there said they are ready to set fire to themselves if government forces enter the religious compound to seize anti-government rebels holding out there.

HUNGER STRIKE

Self-immolation by Buddhist monks on the streets of Saigon was one of the factors that led to the downfall of the Ngo Dinh Diem regime in November, 1963.

Buddhists hastily piled up firewood around the wooden platforms outside the pagoda for monks who vowed to sacrifice their lives. As they erected the platforms, a fire engine drew up and parked outside the compound. Inside the pagoda 30 monks and four nuns began a 48-hour hunger strike in protest of the presence of Ky's troops in Da Nang.

The Buddhist demands upon the military junta were announced in an impassioned speech in Saigon by Venerable Thien Minh, spokesman for Saigon's Buddhist leaders, chiefly Thich Tri Quang, who is regarded as a militant.

WIDER APLT

Ky, a Buddhist nominally, has 2,500 marines and paratroopers holding key sectors of Da Nang in an attempt to bring the dissident areas back to the control of the military government based in Saigon.

But the split between his regime and the northern Buddhists and their followers appeared to have widened since Ky's lightning military strike in Da Nang at day break Sunday. Buddhists in the northern areas have formed armed "struggle committees."

Unity Goal In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House said after top-level talks Monday on the Vietnamese crisis that the United States will work to build unity among all non-Communist elements in South Viet Nam and to carry forward "the movement to wards a constitutional government."

U.S. power in the strife-ridden Southeast Asian country is "to be used to defeat Communist aggression and social misery," a spokesman said.

President Johnson discussed the Vietnamese military situation and the new political crisis with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, State Secretary Rusk, Defence Secretary McNamara and other advisers, prior to Lodge's departure today for Saigon. He has been here in consultation for a week.

The White House press secretary, Bill Moyers, announced that Lodge will go to Saigon, where he is due late this week, by way of Korea, for "a review of our co-ordinated efforts with members of the Korean government" at Seoul. South Korea has 20,000 troops fighting in South Viet Nam and plans to send another 20,000.

Moyers reported that Johnson had received a message from Buddhist leader Thich Tri Quang, in South Viet Nam. Moyers said a reply will be delivered orally to Tri Quang by someone other than Lodge.

The conference here with Johnson and his top foreign policy and military advisers was said to be focused on two major objectives: (1) to restore unity between the Saigon government and anti-government factions, which became locked in bitter conflict during the weekend; and (2) to stick to plans for forming a civilian government, beginning with elections in mid-September.

Lodge met in closed session with members of the foreign af-

Virus Kills 40 Infants

FREEDHOLD, N.J. (AP)—An unidentified virus has taken the lives of 40 infants in Monmouth County, New Jersey, an area of 240,000 persons, during the last year.

Dr. Malcolm Gilman, county physician, said Monday the state health department is trying to identify the virus.

Fishery Dispute At 'High Pitch'

SEATTLE (CP)—Canadian and American delegates arrived here Monday in an attempt to iron out a fishery dispute which an American says has reached a "pretty high pitch."

The dispute involves the taking of salmon off the northwestern coast of North America. Canada is insisting that American fishermen stop intercepting what Canada says are British Columbia-bound salmon in the Noyes Island area of southeastern Alaska.

Canada has said American fishermen are being permitted to cast their nets too far from shore.

The American fishermen have replied that they have what they call "historic" fishing rights in that area and they intend to stay there.

CLOSED MEETINGS

The dispute will be discussed at closed meetings starting today.

Canada is reported to have proposed that if the Americans will stop taking salmon off Noyes Island, it will curtail Canadian fishing in Juan De Fuca Strait. The reaction of the Americans to this proposal is not known.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena), whose riding includes the north coast fishing area around Prince Rupert, has said that the "only thing delaying Canadian retaliation is this ... meeting."

Mr. Howard has charged that Alaska fishermen are trying to stall a settlement until this year's big salmon run has ended. This, he said, would enable the Americans to net a large percentage of salmon headed for home rivers in Canada along the Alaska panhandle.

Force in Rhodesia? Goldberg Horrified

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — American UN Ambassador Arthur Goldberg expressed horror Monday when he was asked about the use of force to crush the outlaw Rhodesian regime.

"It would be horrible to contemplate racial war in Africa and that is what we are talking about when we talk about the use of force in Africa," he told a press conference.

He said everything possible must be done to settle the issue without force. He added that he felt the Rhodesian crisis is the most immediate and most difficult problem facing the United Nations.

SELF-DETERMINATION

He said he hoped the meetings now going on between United Kingdom and Rhodesian authorities would point the way to a solution.

But he said the solution must be based on the principle of self-determination for all Rhodesians, including the colored people.

Mr. Goldberg spent several hours discussing foreign problems with External Affairs Minister Martin. Later he met for a short time with Prime Minister Pearson.

Considerable time was spent discussing the possibility of Red

DETROIT (AP)—A man

walked into the local office of the Socialist Workers party Monday, told the three young men there "You're all Communists," and pumped nine bullets into them, killing one.

About four hours after the shooting, police arrested a man identified by Inspector Robert Grindle as Edward Wanielek, 40, of Detroit.

NO RESISTANCE

Grindle said Wanielek was carrying a pistol and a rifle when arrested, but did not offer resistance.

Grindle said the two wounded victims, Jan Edward Garrett, 22, and Walter Graham, 19, had identified Wanielek earlier as their assailant from a picture.

FORMER STUDENT

The dead man was Leo Bernard, 28, of Detroit. A Wayne State University spokesman said Bernard recently attended the school. Graham and Garrett are liberal arts students at Wayne State, a few blocks from the midtown scene of the shooting.

TROTSKYIST GROUP

The Socialist Workers party is a Trotskyist group whose 1964 presidential candidate was Clifton DeBerry, a Negro house-painter from New York.

Grindle said the two survivors told him the man walked into a room on the Hall's second floor and asked Garrett for a list of the books they had about Lenin, leader of the 1917 Communist revolution in Russia.

GIVEN LIST

Garrett gave him the list. Grindle quoted the two as saying, and the man said, "You're all Communists" and ordered them to sit on the floor.

Bernard was killed by a single shot, Grindle said. Garrett and Graham were shot four times each.

No one else was in the hall at the time of the shooting.

Ottawa Plans Summer Work

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will ask opposition parties to agree to a program of legislative work between now and mid-summer. Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Monday.

He said the government hopes to meet House leaders of the four opposition parties in a day or two to discuss "the possibility of a plan and program until mid-summer, say."

Fears Rise For 262 Abord Ship

MANILA (AP)—Rescue authorities expressed fear for the safety of 262 persons aboard the steamer Pioneer Cebu, being pounded against a reef by typhoon Irma in the Central Philippines.

"We have not had any radio contact since mid-afternoon and we have no hope of getting any help to the area before morning," a rescue official said Monday night.

All Trustees Quit After Royston Loss

ROYSTON — Water district trustees here have resigned effective June 1.

Resignations followed defeat of a plebiscite here Saturday, when voters were asked to approve a change in local government from an improvement district to a district municipality.

At a meeting here Monday,

John Richardson, chairman of the board of trustees, said "when the first plebiscite was defeated in December, 1965, trustees said they were prepared to stand or fall on the results of this second plebiscite."

A general meeting of all taxpayers has been called for June 1, when the resignations take effect.

Scuba Diver Escapes

FERNANDINA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—A fearless scuba diver told Monday how he fought off a 12-foot shark that stalked him like a small fish 15 miles at sea.

Stephen Obsharsky, 22, of Jacksonville, was separated from his boat by the incident and drifted in the Atlantic for nearly a dozen hours before being rescued early Monday by the Coast Guard.

The white shark, he said, was attracted by blood from a 20-pound grouper he had speared. Obsharsky said he surrendered the small fish to the shark.

"He ate the grouper, then turned toward me as though he wanted more," the five-foot-five telephone repairman said.

"Sharks don't like to be hit on the nose," Obsharsky said. "I jettisoned my weight belt and it hit him. It worked. He went away."

The incident took only 10 minutes, but during that time Obsharsky drifted away from Amberjack Hole where he had been diving with two companions—Victor L. Loyd and Charlotte Plummer.

He waved and shouted to them before he routed the shark but they set the boat on an opposite course looking for him.

Obsharsky swam to a small fishing buoy, shedding his scuba tanks on the way because they were dragging him with the current. He kept his fins and mask. Obsharsky reached the buoy—a small 18-inch square plastic float and clung to it. His companions, meanwhile, gave up the search after 45 minutes and headed for shore to get help.

Shortly before dusk two airplanes and a helicopter passed over but Obsharsky said he didn't think they saw him. He decided to cut the buoy's anchor cable and swim for shore, using the buoy as a cushion.

At 12:45 a.m. the commercial fishing boat Azalea City radioed the Coast Guard it had heard someone cry for help, but was unable to stop in time. The cutter Point Roberts headed for the area and picked up Obsharsky about 45 minutes later.

Mermaid Proves Winner

Heavy rain showers did not deter a large crowd from cheering ladies' canoe team, Kiooches, to victory over Backsides crew of boys from Nanaimo over course on Quamichan Lake. War canoe Mermaid was also lucky for Shell Beach men's team who won 11-man crew race. — (Klaus Mueller)

Rodeo Winner From Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Winner of the Junior Chamber of Commerce safe driving rodeo Sunday was Patrick Wilson, 16, of Nanaimo, with 381 points out of a possible 500. Phillip Halkett was second with 357 points and Peter Moleck third with 330.

Instant Town Budgets 'Blind'

GOLD RIVER—This "instant town" has introduced its first budget of $159,102 and in common with most B.C. communities education accounted for the largest expenditure.

Spending will be as follows: General government—$35,600; fire and public safety—$10,850; public works—$12,000; Sanitation and waste removal—$11,500; education—$33,277; parks, recreation and community services—$8,300.

NO YARDSTICK

This budget is unique in that there is no yardstick by which to gauge expenditure or revenue estimates in the coming months.

The council must estimate the needs of the community of approximately 2,500 persons, where only about one-tenth of this number now live permanently.

Canoeists Battle Two-Foot Waves

DUNCAN — Shotgun blasts Sunday afternoon at Quamichan Lake marked the end of the B.C. 11-man war canoe championship race and the sleek dugout Mermaid from Shell Beach glided smoothly across the finish line.

It was the most exciting event of the 77th annual Cowichan Indian Corpus Christi water sports.

The crowd at the shore, estimated at about 1,500 people, cheered the exhausted crew after a gruelling, three-mile dash across choppy water of the lake in 22 minutes, 35 seconds.

While eight canoes still battled two-foot waves furrowing the wind-swept lake, St. Theresa from Vancouver finished about seven lengths behind the winning boat with the Cowichan dugout Mr. Prevost coming in third.

Other competitors were: Sweet Daddy, Cowichan; Prince Charles, Nanaimo; Cherokee, Saanich; St. John, Burrard; Lady Esther, Saanich; Rainbow, Chemainus Bay; Bluebird, Nanaimo, and St. George.

Earlier in the afternoon, the Mermaid already had taken first place in the one-mile dash for the Vancouver Island championship against 10 competitors.

St. Prevost was second and St. Theresa was third.

HEAVY RAIN

Undisturbed by occasional heavy rainstorms the spectators watched the Kiooches men, women, in Mermaid beat the Backsides crew, boys, in Bluebird from Nanaimo.

Harvey Livingston dumped his brother Cyril Livingston from Lake Cowichan in the log burling event.

Lester Edwards and Joe Harris, Shell Beach, won the double paddle race over Ernie George and Dale George, Burrard.

PADDLERS

Lester Edwards beat Ernie George in the single paddle marathon, and Mermaid once more took top honors in the six-man canoe race over St. Theresa and St. John.

Main organizers for the water sports were Abel Joe, Ross Modeste, Father Joseph Rosier, Shirley Alphonse and Abner Thorne.

Logger Hurt Condition Fair

CHEMAINUS — Michael Baptiste, a bushworker from the Cowichan Lake area, is in fair condition at the Chemainus General Hospital following a motor accident early Sunday on Osborne Bay Road between Crofton and Herd Road.

Mr. Baptiste was identified as the driver of the car. With him were Bruce Baillie of Duncan, Gary Deutch and Robert Schumann, both of Williams Lake. None was hurt.

Historical Delegates Feted at Barbecue

GALIANO—Big event of the first B.C. Historical Association provincial conference to be held on the Gulf Islands was a junior version of the Dominion Day Saturna Beach lamb barbecue.

The barbecue, held in the community hall Sunday, was put on by 20 Saturna children. The proceeds went to their centennial project, a cross-Canada safari.

The three-day provincial conference was held on Mayne, Galiano and Saturna Islands.

The 22 members of the association who attended heard Donald Mitchell, department of archeology, University of Victoria, talk on his Montague Harbor dig.

Donald News spoke on the history of the Gulf Islands, Willard Ireland, archivist, Victoria, on the "Background of the Union of the Colony." Hon. Leslie Peterson on education among the Gulf Islands and Mrs. Margaret (Ma) Murray, publisher of the Bridge River-Lillooet News, explained why during her 53 history-making years in the B.C. newspaper business she has been too busy to read about it.

AGAIN PRESIDENT

Mr. News, Galiano, was elected president for a third term.

Fraser Wilson, Burnaby, was elected first vice-president, Mrs. Mabel Jordan, Kelowna and Victoria, second vice-president, Robin Brammell, Vancouver, secretary, Miss Beanie Choate, Burnaby, editor and Professor John Gibbard, Vancouver and H. Bourke Nash, Victoria, were elected as executive members.

Plans call for the raising of certain parts of River Road and the diking of Kitaukus Creek by the provincial highways department.

In 'Fighting Mood'

Duncan's IWA Men Strongly Back Strike

DUNCAN—Members of the large Local 1-80, IWA, apparently are anxious to authorize strike action.

Local business agent Fernie Viala said Monday a secret union strike vote is being counted now and should be completed soon, but members make no secret of the way they are voting.

There are about 4,500 members in the local and Mr. Viala said, the membership is in a "fighting mood."

IN FAVOR

He said indications are over 90 per cent of the members in this area will vote in favor of strike action.

The strike vote is being taken at 60 operations. Mr. Viala said Forest Industrial Relations spokesman John Billings has hinted he would not request a government supervised strike vote.

The local's business agent stressed, "We would be very happy if the employers would change their attitude and start negotiating in good faith."

The recent two-year contract between about 25,000 Woodworkers on the West Coast and lumber operations will expire June 15.

FEW POINTS

Some of the IWA's 16 demands are: A one-year contract, portable pay for loggers, longer vacations with more pay, double pay for overtime, improved job security and assured seniority.

Mr. Viala said negotiations for a new contract began in March but bogged down after no offer was made by representatives from the industry. Earlier Local 1-80, IWA, president Weldon Jubenville charged, "In the two 10-day stages of negotiations, John Billings has continued his usual stalling tactics and cynical statements without laying one single offer on the table."

'WHOLE PIE'

In turn Mr. Billings said, "The IWA in B.C. is demanding three times as much as the lumber unions on the States' west coast."

He emphasized, "The IWA doesn't want a bigger piece of pie. It wants the whole pie."

Island-Mainland Bridge Feasibility Study Urged

NANAIMO (CP)—The Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island are trying to spark a study on the feasibility of a bridge link between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Joe Garner of Nanaimo, chairman of the association's industrial committee, said Sunday the organization is trying to get the provincial government or private industry to undertake more detailed studies of bridge link possibilities.

He noted that Campbell River town council recently conducted general studies on the subject.

NEED PLANNING

"To get development for northern Vancouver Island, it is necessary to launch long-range planning," said Mr. Garner. Feasibility of a road link and direct rail, power and gas links were examined recently in a special air tour by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, and representatives of B.C. Hydro, B.C. telephone Co., Vancouver Island Co., and island municipal officials.

Flooding Control Nearer

Flood control measures will soon be carried out in the low-lying area of Alberni where extensive damage was caused by a tidal wave in April 1964.

Resources Minister Williston was authorized by a cabinet order Monday to complete an agreement with Alberni on the $40,000 project which will improve the city, the provincial government and the federal government.

CREEK-DIKING

Plans call for the raising of certain parts of River Road and the diking of Kitaukus Creek by the provincial highways department.

Ochewa has agreed to pay $22,500 of the total cost. Alberni will pay up to $15,000 and the provincial government will pay the rest.

Realtors Seek True Interest

NANAIMO — B.C. Realtors will seek provincial legislation to ensure the true rate of interest on mortgage loans is disclosed on all pertinent documents.

A resolution to this effect was passed at the annual meeting of the realtor division of the B.C. Real Estate Convention taking place here Sunday, Monday and today.

Delegates also called for the National Housing Act to be extended to permit financing of older properties.

Elected directors of the professional division of the institute were Harold Davies, Bill Harrison and Ed. Newcombe, all of Vancouver; Philip Holmes of Victoria; Ken Guest of Nanaimo; Harold Chivers of Burnaby; Frank Baynes of Cranbrook, and Kenneth Luttrell of Prince George.

Don Messer Invited For Show

NANAIMO — Don Messer has been asked to bring his show here for centennial year by the Civic Properties and Recreation Commission.

Commission manager Harry Wippen said Monday night so far a reply has not been received from the National Arts Centre in Ottawa which is sponsoring the show's tour in 1967.

The Gyro Club wrote on behalf of the junior and juvenile soccer association complaining lack of drainage at the Gyro Youth Centre on Wentworth and Milton streets.

CONCESSION

The club pointed out it had spent $34,000 on the park over the past years.

The request was turned over to the parks committee for a report.

Trio Suspected In Store Raid

DUNCAN — Safe-crackers had little time for chickenfeed when they raided the Buckfield mill, one mile south of here, during the weekend.

The thieves took $500 in cash and $200 in cheques.

Mill manager Jack Prasloski said the thieves had to force open three locked doors to get to the safe, which was in the office.

DESCRIPTION

RCMP here are looking for three young men who came into the store Saturday afternoon to make a purchase.

Mr. Prasloski said the police have a good description of them and the car they were driving.

The robbery was discovered about 5 p.m. Sunday when mill foreman Mike Hawkes made a routine check of the premises.

BACK DOOR

Mr. Prasloski said the robbers forced their way into the plant through a back door leading to the mill, from there they pried open a door to a small hallway and finally they broke open a third locked door into the office.

Mr. Prasloski said the safe was wheeled from the office into the hallway, turned over and then the safe-crackers went to work with an axe and a sledge hammer.

He said, "they certainly knew what they were doing. They were professionals."

Courtenay Proposal Lost Again

COURTENAY — A plebiscite to change from an improvement district to a district municipality held at Royston May 14 has gone down to defeat for the second time.

The vote Saturday failed to pass by 13 per cent or approximately four votes.

In the first plebiscite held last December the proposal was lost by about nine votes.

MEETING

After Saturday's defeat, chairman of the trustees, John Richardson said he would contact Dan Campbell, minister of municipal affairs, and place the whole matter before him. An emergency meeting of trustees was called last night to discuss the situation.

Husband Found? She Doesn't Care

NANAIMO (CP) — A woman here has turned thumbs down on a husband she hasn't seen for 35 years who popped up recently in Waboch, England.

Bennett Changes Emphasis

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said Monday that the B.C. government was turning its attention from dams and blacktop to concentrate more on the care and culture of its citizens.

This involved such things as highways, ferries, bridges, tunnels, railroads, pipelines and energy production, he said.

The premier's statement came during discussion of a suggestion that British Columbia's art and cultural circles seek financial support from the government. He left the door open on that point.

The question was brought up during the opening of the combined universities-Dominion Drama Festival theatre conferences held at the University of Victoria.

Tom Hendrey of Toronto, head of the Canadian Theatre

Centre, had said: "As long as the government of wealthy British Columbia feels it can exist without an arts council, leadership in drama, opera and ballet will continue to be fragmented."

The premier said he had not seen the report, but that the proper procedure for seeking provincial grants was through the office of Provincial Secretary Wesley Black.

Mr. Bennett added that the government would be looking into the question of the needs of the people of B.C., including in the field of the arts.

It's Go, Go! Into Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—

Two Gemini 9 pilots are completely set for a daring dash into space today to stage a moon-flight rendezvous rehearsal and a record 2½-hour space walk.

The launch of the Gemini 9 spaceship was set for 9:38 a.m. PDT, an hour and 39 minutes after the scheduled liftoff of the Agena target vehicle with which Gemini 9 is to rendezvous in space.

Launch time of the Agena atop an Atlas booster rocket, is set for 8 a.m. Victoria time.

The countdown on Gemini 9, to be boosted in space by a

Titan II rocket, is to begin at 4:39 a.m.

The spectre of bad weather in the Atlantic faded.

With that hurdle past, the Gemini 9 crew, U.S. Air Force Lt.-Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Lt.-Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan, breezed through final review and training sessions Monday.

Their 70 hours and 40 minutes in space is a hectic, jam-packed parade of events that will see the 32-year-old Cernan manoeuvring himself solo through space Wednesday.

LIBERALS ON SPOT TODAY

By RON COLLISTER
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The government today faces another cliff-hanger vote over tight money that Tory George Hees warned could cause a business downturn in Canada.

Moving his first non-confidence motion since he returned to Parliament, Mr. Hees slammed the government for penalizing the small home-builder who can't raise money to go ahead.

Monday night both New Democrat and Creditist spokesmen said they would support him, making it a close shave for the minority government.

'NEGATIVE APPROACH'

Mr. Hees, former Tory trade minister, said the government, in tight money and denying builders and prospective homeowners mortgage funds, was taking a "negative approach" to economic problems and seriously impeding the development of the nation.

He unveiled a four-point manifesto to help the small homeowner:

Mortgages under the National Housing Act should be re-directed to the average home, rather than the middle or executive-type homes — "which is the case today."

Insurance companies, which seek insurance business all across Canada, should be required to invest mortgage funds in towns and rural areas "as a duty." These, he said, are the areas hit hardest.

Interest rates should be reduced to six per cent, allowing banks to participate under the National Housing Act. (The NHA rate was raised to six and three-quarter per cent last year. When the rate went above six per cent, Mr. Hees argued, the banks were eliminated from NHA financing. The banks have a six per cent ceiling interest rate.)

Unity Goal In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House said after top-level talks Monday on the Vietnamese crisis that the United States will work to build unity among all non-Communist elements in South Viet Nam and to carry forward "the movement towards a constitutional government."

U.S. power in the strife-ridden Southeast Asian country is "to be used to defeat Communist aggression and social misery," a spokesman said.

President Johnson discussed the Vietnamese military situation and the new political crisis with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, State Secretary Rusk, Defence Secretary McNamara and other advisers, prior to Lodge's departure today for Saigon. He has been here in consultation for a week.

The White House press secretary, Bill Moyers, announced that Lodge will go to Saigon, where he is due late this week, by way of Korea, for "a review of our co-ordinated efforts with members of the Korean government" at Seoul. South Korea has 20,000 troops fighting in South Viet Nam and plans to send another 20,000.

Moyers reported that Johnson has received a message from Buddhist Leader Thich Tri Quang, in South Viet Nam. Moyers said a reply will be delivered orally to Tri Quang by someone other than Lodge.

The conference here with Johnson and his top foreign policy and military advisers was said to be focused on two major objectives: (1) to restore unity between the Saigon government and anti-government factions, which became locked in bitter conflict during the weekend; and (2) to stick to plans for forming a civilian government, beginning with elections in mid-September.

Lodge met in closed session with members of the foreign affairs and appropriations committees of the House of Representatives. Later he refused to answer questions.

Those who attended the committee session were reluctant to comment, but one congressman said Lodge's report was optimistic and the ambassador still believed there will be an election in Viet Nam this year.

Officials said Lodge's departure is not being hastened because of the new upheaval. They said he had planned to begin his return to Saigon today anyway.

withdraw troops he sent to wrest control of Da Nang for his military regime.

All Buddhist monks are ready to die for the cause, a spokesman said.

In Da Nang, immolation platforms were thrown up at a pagoda and monks there said they are ready to set fire to themselves if government forces enter the religious compound to seize anti-government rebels holding out there.

HUNGER STRIKE

Self-immolation by Buddhist monks on the streets of Saigon was one of the factors that led to the downfall of the Ngo Dinh Diem regime in November, 1963.

Buddhists hastily piled up firewood around the wooden platforms outside the pagoda for monks who vowed to sacrifice their lives. As they erected the platforms, a fire engine drew up and parked outside the compound. Inside the pagoda 10 monks and four nuns began a 48-hour hunger strike in protest of the presence of Ky's troops in Da Nang.

The Buddhist demands upon the military junta were announced in an impassioned speech in Saigon by Venerable Thien Minh, spokesman for Saigon's Buddhist leaders, chiefly Thich Tri Quang, who is regarded as a militant.

WIDER SPLIT

Ky, a Buddhist nominally, has 2,500 marines and paratroopers holding key sectors of Da Nang in an attempt to bring the dissident areas back to the control of the military government based in Saigon.

But the split between his regime and the northern Buddhists and their followers appeared to have deepened since Ky's lightning military strike in Da Nang at day break Sunday. Buddhists in the northern areas have formed armed "struggle committees."

Force in Rhodesia? Goldberg Horrified

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — American UN Ambassador Arthur Goldberg expressed horror Monday when he was asked about the use of force to crush the outlaw Rhodesian regime.

"It would be horrible to contemplate racial war in Africa and that is what we are talking about when we talk about the use of force in Rhodesia," he told a press conference.

He said everything possible must be done to settle the issue without force. He added that he felt the Rhodesian crisis is the most immediate and most difficult problem facing the United Nations.

SELF-DETERMINATION

He said he hoped the meetings now going on between United Kingdom and Rhodesian authorities would point the way to a solution.

But he said the solution must be based on the principle of self-determination for all Rhodesians, including the colored people.

Mr. Goldberg spent several hours discussing foreign problems with External Affairs Minister Martin Monday. Later he met for a short time with Prime Minister Pearson.

Considerable time was spent discussing the possibility of Red

Trio of Socialists Felled by Gunman

DETROIT (AP)—A man walked into the local office of the Socialist Workers party

Monday, told the three young men there, "You're all Communists," and pumped nine bullets into them, killing one.

About four hours after the shooting, police arrested a man identified by Inspector Robert Grindle as Edward Wanielek, 40, of Detroit.

NO RESISTANCE

Grindle said Wanielek was carrying a pistol and a rifle when arrested, but did not offer resistance.

Grindle said the two wounded victims, Jan Edward Garrett, 22, and Walter Graham, 19, had identified Wanielek earlier as their assailant from a picture.

FORMER STUDENT

The dead man was Leo Bernard, 28, of Detroit. A Wayne State University spokesman said Bernard recently attended the school. Graham and Garrett are liberal arts students at Wayne State, a few blocks from the midtown scene of the shooting.

TROTSKYIST GROUP

The Socialist Workers party is a Trotskyist group whose 1964 presidential candidate was Clinton DeBerry, a Negro house-painter from New York.

Grindle said the two survivors told him the man walked into a room on the Hall's second floor and asked Garrett for a list of the books they had about Lenin, leader of the 1917 Communist revolution in Russia.

GIVEN LIST

Grindle gave him the list. Garrett quoted the two as saying, and the man said, "You're all Communists" and ordered them to sit on the floor.

Bernard was killed by a single shot, Grindle said. Garrett and Graham were shot four times each.

No one else was in the hall at the time of the shooting.

Proposal Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP)—Striking outside workers overwhelmingly rejected Monday night the city's latest proposal for arbitration to settle an 11-day-old walkout.

The Vancouver Civic Employees Union voted 958-27 against accepting the city's proposal for arbitration to settle the union's wage dispute with the city.

Passengers Survive Bad Night

MANILA (AP)—The 262 passengers aboard the Philippine ship Pioneer Cebu were reported safe today as rescue ships headed for the inter-island steamer, aground in typhoon-churned waters near Cebu.

Filipinas Pioneer Lines, owners of the vessel, said the ship is still intact and the passengers apparently safe after a night of terror on the wave-lashed rocks.

Jail Death Inquest Ordered

An inquest into the death of a woman found dead in the city jail Sunday morning will be held today or Wednesday, coroner Edmond Jore de St. Jorre said Monday.

Police are collecting evidence. Mr. Jore de St. Jorre said, into the death of Virginia George, 30, who died serving a three-day sentence for being intoxicated in a public place.

She was arrested Wednesday but court was told she was too ill to appear Thursday morning. Deputy Chief Ray Maitland said Miss George had received medical attention for delirium tremens.

She had been taken to St. Joseph's Hospital Thursday night and treated after her condition had concerned the city police, Deputy Maitland said.

Dr. H. L. McNiven gave Miss George sedation twice on Saturday and she was watched constantly.

However, when she was checked at 7 a.m. Sunday, she was dead.

Fishery Dispute At 'High Pitch'

SEATTLE (CP)—Canadian fishermen are being permitted to cast their nets too far from shore.

The American fishermen have replied that they have what they call "historic" fishing rights in that area and they intend to stay there.

CLOSED MEETINGS

The dispute will be discussed at closed meetings starting today.

Canada is reported to have proposed that if the Americans will stop taking salmon off

Noyes Island, it will curtail Canadian fishing in Juan De Fuca Strait. The reaction of the Americans to this proposal is not known.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena), whose riding includes the north coast fishing area around Prince Rupert, has said that the "only thing delaying Canadian retaliation is this... meeting."

Mr. Howard has charged that Alaska fishermen are trying to stall a settlement until this year's big salmon run has ended. This, he said, would enable the Americans to net a large percentage of salmon headed for home rivers in Canada along the Alaska panhandle.

Scuba Diver Escapes

FERNANDINA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—A fearless scuba diver told Monday how he fought off a 12-foot shark that stalked him like a small fish 15 miles at sea.

Stephen Obsharsky, 22, of Jacksonville, was separated from his boat by the incident and drifted in the Atlantic for nearly a dozen hours before being rescued early Monday by the Coast Guard.

The white shark, he said, was attracted by blood from a 20-pound grouper he had speared. Obsharsky said he surrendered the small fish to the shark.

"He ate the grouper, then turned toward me as though he wanted more," the five-foot-five telephone repairman said.

"Sharks don't like to be hit on the nose," Obsharsky said. "I jettisoned my weight belt and it hit him. It worked. He went away."

The incident took only 10 minutes, but during that time, Obsharsky drifted away from Amberjack Hole where he had been diving with two companions—Victor Lloyd and Charlotte Plummer.

He waved and shouted to them before he routed the shark but they set the boat on an opposite course looking for him.

Obsharsky swam to a small fishing buoy, shedding his scuba tanks on the way because they were dragging him with the current. He kept his fins and mask. Obsharsky reached the buoy—a small 18-inch square plastic float and clung to it. His companions, meanwhile, gave up the search after 45 minutes and headed for shore to get help.

Shortly before dusk two airplanes and a helicopter passed over but Obsharsky said he didn't think they saw him. He decided to cut the buoy's anchor cable and swim for shore, using the buoy as a cushion.

At 12:45 a.m. the commercial fishing boat Azalea City radioed the Coast Guard it had heard someone cry for help, but was unable to stop in time. The cutter Port Roberts headed for the area and "picked up" Obsharsky about 45 minutes later.

'Hit It!' He Shouts —And Surges Up

Ski instructor Guy Reese teaches dry land technique, with boat standing by for real thing.

"Hit it," shouts the water skier, and the boat driver pushes the throttle forward. The skier surges to the top and within seconds he's flashing across the water.

If you would like to join the more than a million water skiers who enjoy this exciting sport, here's some advice from a real pro, champion water skier Guy Reese. He suggests that you start by practicing the dry land technique. It's a quick way to gain the "feel" of skis and build self confidence. This simplified form of instruction can be given anywhere, even in your living room. All you need is an instructor, a pair of water skis and a tow line.

KNEE BENDS HELP

Before you start, do five or six deep knee bends. This helps sharpen your sense of balance and co-ordination. When putting on water skis, adjust the bindings by sliding the heel piece into place. The fit should be snug, but comfortable. If you're near water, wet both your feet and the skis. Your feet will slip into the bindings easier.

Now you're ready for instruction. Grasp the tow line handle. Have your instructor lower you down into a sitting position. Once seated, stretch your arms out straight keeping your knees between your elbows. The tow line handle should be just in front of your knees.

Have your instructor pull on the tow line slowly raising you to a stand position. Don't try and stand up by yourself. Let the instructor exert the pulling force. This simulates the manner in which you'll be pulled to the surface when actually water skiing. Repeat this procedure a half dozen times. Each time check to see that your knees are between your elbows and the tow line handle is correctly positioned.

Once you're in the water, review in your mind the dry land technique. Check the position of your knees and the tow line. If you've learned the lesson properly, you'll be flashing across the water on your first try.

When skiing, remember that there are certain definite rules as set out by the department of transport governing the operation of a boat towing water skiers, a surf board, disc, or any of the other water sports equipment which requires tow-out straight keeping your knees drive their craft in a manner dangerous to life or limb or to navigation. Secondly, when a boat is towing a person on skis, another authorized observer, in addition to the driver, must be in the boat to keep an eye on or disc, or any such equipment, the skier. Thirdly, no one may water ski, or practise any other such sport involving towing, from one hour after sunset until sunrise.

In addition to these definite rules, there are of course the common sense and courteous rules of the road. These include staying well clear of swimming areas and fishing areas and other boats, and not operating in narrow channels at high speed where the noise and wash will disturb cottagers, and wearing a life jacket or belt at all times.

New Dimension in Underwater Diving

New surface air supply system brings a new dimension to underwater exploration as these divers show. Direct air supply eliminates cumbersome tanks.

Diving Easier

A new dimension in skin diving has been realized this year by a new portable surface air supply system for limited depth diving.

The floating, self contained scuboy feeds air directly to two divers from power-driven compressors mounted in a flotation collar. The unit follows the divers as they swim parallel to the surface of the water.

The device permits greater latitude in diving than can be obtained with snorkel equipment and also eliminates the need for one or more tanks strapped to the back of a diver, as practiced in scuba diving.

It has been greeted as a breakthrough in the sport of skin diving and is designed for dives to depths of 25 feet.

At these depths, and with a free flow of air, a diver can submerge and ascend as often as he likes, breathing naturally. He is not encumbered with tanks strapped to his back or with the need to have them recharged.

Its inventors believe the new portable floating diving unit will spur new interest in recreational diving, in underwater exploration, photography, marine biology and in such commercial applications as hull repair and maintenance.

The complete scuboy system includes two face masks with valves, two 36-foot vinyl air hoses, engine, twin compressors, flotation tube, exhaust tube and skin diving flag.

Designed with twin compressors, the scuboy permits two divers to swim together in recommended buddy system for 40 to 55 minutes. Powered by a two horsepower, two-cycle engine, the twin compressors enable the divers to swim at different levels from each other. The two full-face masks allow each diver to breath naturally.

Pretty—and All at Sea

Outdoors and attractive sports clothes go hand in hand for girls and women. Practical and comfortable clothing for boating, swimming, hiking, camping can combine with smart styles. Point is proven, above, by Susan Wilkinson, a Miss Victoria contestant, who makes a pretty picture while at sea.

Check with Campsite For Dog Regulations

Dogs enjoy accompanying you on a camping trip, but if you plan to stay at a private campsite you had better check to see if animals are welcome. Some places won't have dogs. When you are camping remember that your dog is in strange territory and easily become lost. Keep him close to you. Do not let him be a nuisance to other campers. Remember, too, that dogs should not be allowed to swim near small children. This has been known to cause accidents, not intentionally, but because of the natural boisterousness of the dog.

Patio Adds Value

Outdoor Living Area Great for Hot Days

The climate of Vancouver Island lends itself admirably to patio living and with patios come barbecues. When fine weather comes Vancouver Islanders simply move outdoors.

For the cost, a patio attached to your home will add more to the value and do more toward your enjoyment of living outdoors than anything else. It will provide a comfortable spot on hot days, protection against showers, and can be screened against insects, or glazed for cool days.

While actual construction of a roofed patio is relatively simple with today's easy-to-use building materials, it is not just a matter of building a porch on to your home. It must be designed and located to blend with the architecture of your home.

Your building supply dealer will be happy to assist you in the planning of your patio and will have several brochures that will help.

The new plastic roofing which comes in eight-foot-long corrugated sheets makes for easy construction for patios, fences, windscreens, sunporches, carports and greenhouses. Pre-cast concrete blocks, either plain or in fancy patterns, are ideal for patio walls or foundations and are handy for building permanent barbecues.

A variety of forest sidings make building for outdoor living a pleasure.

Don't hesitate to call upon B.C. Hydro for expert advice in planning your outdoors lighting.

There is a wide variety of patio furniture available to enhance the looks and add comfort to your patio setting and sun cots and umbrella sets are among the most desirable.

If your house or yard doesn't lend itself too well to an attached patio, a free-standing one in the form of a "living wall" may be the answer to your outdoors way of life.

This wall can provide an attractive and sheltered barbecue centre, complete with cooking and dishwashing facilities and it can also house a portable TV or hi-fi for entertainment. It could have a place for keeping outdoor game equipment and storage room for garden equipment.

You can have a permanent barbecue made of bricks or concrete blocks or you can have any one of scores of different types of ready-made barbecues which range from four or five dollars for a small unit to hundreds of dollars for elaborate outfits.

Best advice is to start your career as a barbecue chef with a small unit. Find out by becoming familiar with the techniques of outdoor cooking how much of it you want to do and how you plan to use your outdoor cooking area.

Your first small grill won't be wasted. Later it can be used as a supplementary grill for cooking appetizers, when children want to toast marshmallows or hot dogs, or to take along on picnic or camping trips.

When you have mastered the art of barbecue cooking you may want to purchase a cooking wagon or table. Some of the more elaborate units have warming ovens, self lighters, electric motor-driven rotisseries, storage drawers, attached working surfaces and rubber tires for easier mobility. The grills can be raised or lowered to obtain the degree of heat desired.

Becoming increasingly popular are the portable-type barbecues that can be folded and carried along on picnics and camping trips.

Deep Vee Boats Combine Speed with Smoothness

Coming thing in marine cruising is Deep Vee boats which give high speed combined with smooth cruising in rough waters. Canoe Cove Marina has sole Canadian licence to assemble the famed yachts for Bertram Company, which pioneered Deep Vee in North America. They come in sizes and models from 20 feet to 38 feet and are of low maintenance fibreglass construction. Pictured is the 20-foot Bertram Moppie. For those who can't afford Bertram there are do-it-yourself kits for plywood models.

Make Your Own Cruiser

A North Vancouver architect has come up with plans for a 23-foot deep vee cruiser designed for cruising with four people, with galley, enclosed toilet and flying bridge . . . and basic materials will cost less than $700.

Development of powerful marine engines in recent years and the general growth and improvement in boating facilities in both North America and Europe brought a demand for small craft that could safely cover long distances in rough water without sacrificing speed.

SEAWORTHY

An outcome of this demand was the rough weather deep vee power boat hull first developed by the American naval architect Raymond C. Hunt. A successful designer in both sail and power, Hunt turned his considerable talent to the search for a high speed power craft with good sea-keeping qualities.

He found his answer in the deep vee hull form which takes its name from the hull shape forward. The deep vee handles well at all speeds and is much easier to handle at slow speeds than many planing hulls.

POPULAR HERE

The deep vee hull is now finding popularity in Vancouver Island waters, but until recently deep vee boats were available only from dealers or professional shipyards.

The lightweight and strength of marine grade fir plywood lends itself to a great many boat designs and it was with this in mind that North Vancouver naval architect Frank Carus has designed a 23-foot deep vee of plywood construction for the home builder.

CONSTRUCTION

Construction is relatively simple with full length sheet of marine grade fir plywood being used for top sides and bottom. This plywood planking is applied over three-quarter inch by two and one-half inch fir longitudinal battens and three-quarter by three-inch yellow cedar transverse frames.

Use of this construction method gives a strong, light and durable hull. Fibreglass can be applied, but is not essential. Resin-overlaid marine grade fir plywood, available in different brands, gives an excellent surface for painting.

DIFFERENT LAYOUTS

Power can be inboard, outboard or inboard-outboard. A 150 horsepower inboard-outboard gives speeds of from 30 to 35 miles an hour. Three different layouts are available for this boat, a flying bridge cruiser, a sedan cruiser for water taxi-work or a small shelter cabin for overnight cruising or fishing.

While material costs vary from place to place, basic construction materials (plywood, lumber, glue, fastenings) will cost about $625. Pre-cut frame kits of sawn stem, laminated plywood cheeks, yellow cedar or mahogany frames with plywood gussets, complete transom and harpin are available for those who wish to get a head start on building.

Further information about this boat and many other plywood boats may be obtained from Rex Neptune, PO Box 2123, Vancouver 3, B.C.

Snapshots Can Recall Enjoyment of Strolls

When you take your first spring or summer walk you can preserve the uniqueness of the experience by taking along the camera.

When you want the spirit of the season in your snapshots, and you aren't quite sure how to go about it, think about the things that make the season special. That means water, greenery, rains and sunshine.

BRIGHT SEASON

Spring is a bright season, as well as a wet one, and blazing pools of water could result in an over-exposed film. Let your eyes decide whether the scene confronting you is too bright.

You can reduce the glare in a situation like that by changing your angle.

AVOID STEREOTYPE

When you are taking pictures of people, remember to avoid the stereotype — a row of figures staring blankly into the lens. By overlapping the figures, you can put a pleasing variety into the pose. Have them doing something natural like playing a game, or simply relaxing on the grass.

Use your camera to the fullest. You'll be glad you did when you see your color snapshots or slides.

Public Shares Forests

Although about four-fifths of Vancouver Island is reserved for the forest industry, recreationists are never likely to be starved for outdoors activities. They now share the forests with the timber companies under an amicable multiple use plan.

It is the forest lands that provide the bulk of the outdoors recreation these days. Without the forests there would be practically nowhere to hunt. Other areas are being built up and posted so quickly that the forests are about the only place left.

The whole northern half of Vancouver Island is one complete network of forest reserves and under sustained yield policies will likely remain that way.

FOR RECREATION

Within the past few years these forestlands have been opened to the public for recreation during non-operating hours.

Recreationists are allowed the use of the logging roads under a new multiple use concept which has been developed in the past three or four years.

And they do use the forests for recreation.

Crown Zellerbach pioneered the public access program and in the last 10 years 130,000 people have used their forest lands for recreation.

MacMillan and Bloedel now has the most liberal public access program with all its operations open, even the active logging areas, in non-operating hours throughout the whole year, except for fire hazard periods.

Last year MacMillan and Bloedel had 3,018 miles of logging road which were used by 88,851 recreationists who shot 3,747 deer, 81 bear, 20 cougars, 13 elk, 3,093 grouse, 523 other birds and caught 29,948. These recreationists also included berry pickers, rock hounds, sightseers, swimmers and picknickers.

HUNTING, FISHING

On Vancouver Island this company had 470 miles open in its Franklin River division, which were used by 7,200 recreationists who bagged 400 deer and caught 8,800 fish. One hundred miles in Kennedy Lake area were used by 450 recreationists who bagged 40 deer and caught 1,000 fish. Spruce Lake, with 345 miles, was used by 13,160 recreationists who bagged 345 deer and caught 5,840 fish.

Shawigan Lake division, with 195 miles of road, was visited by 5,000 recreationists who got 300 deer, 100 fish. Copper Canyon, 280 miles, 2,490 recreationists, 170 deer; Nanaimo River, 145 miles, 1,186 recreationists, 147 deer; Northwest Bay 250 miles, 11,000 recreationists, 600 deer, 800 fish; Menzies Bay, 206 miles, 3,800 recreationists, 197 deer, 350 fish; Iron River, 92 miles, 700 recreationists, 47 deer, 100 fish; Kelsey Bay, 221 miles, 1,800 recreationists, 400 deer, 3,000 fish; Port Hardy, 100 miles, 175 recreationists, 30 deer, 250 fish.

17,372 PERMITS

Crown Zellerbach's Nanaimo Lakes operations issued 17,272 permits (access policy of CZ requires permits which are issued at gates) including 3,800 for skiers, 2,800 for hunters, 2,600 for fishermen and 7,900 miscellaneous. From that area recreationists caught 5,707 fish; bagged seven elk, 110 grouse, 285 bucks and 80 does.

In that company's Browns

River operations at Courtenay got 630 fish, 121 bucks, 181 grouse and 97 does. At Comox Lake 1,874 hunters and fishermen got 501 fish, 180 bucks, 83 does and 125 grouse.

LIBERAL PROGRAM

CZ's Nitinat and Ladysmith operations are only open during hunting season.

That company has 126 miles of logging road open for public recreation in the Nanaimo Lakes area, 55 in Ladysmith, 45 in Nitinat, 54 in two Courtenay areas, 58 at Beaver Cove, 77 at Bella Coola and 80 at Sandpoint.

Both MacMillan and Crown Zellerbach provide handy maps of their areas for use of recreationists. CZ maps are available at the Ladysmith office on the Island Highway and MacMillan and Bloedel maps can be obtained from the public information office at the Harmac Mill at Nanaimo.

Six different logging companies co-operate to provide a through road to the north of Vancouver Island and Canadian Forest Products in the Nimpkish area has provided lovely campsites at Woss, Vernon and Schoen Lakes. Rayonier has provided a campsite at Marble River, near Port McNeill. This is a brand new 190 miles of vacationland.

B.C. Forest Products pioneered the building of campsites within forest lands. It has a campsite at Fairy Lake in the Port Renfrew area and a beautiful campsite near its Oayouse Camp on Cowichan Lake. Crown Zellerbach has provided picnic sites and boat launching facilities at Comox Lake.

In Sooke 10 logging companies which provide excellent sites for town area.

B.C. Forest Products is pioneering the use of special lands for youth groups. In the centre of 3,500 acres of Sooke forestland are two beautiful little lakes, Shields and Crabapple, camping and picnicking, and the surrounding hills and dales afford many miles of trails for hiking and exploring.

A rustic cabin has been built at Shields Lake and a cabin and cookhouse at Crabapple.

It has been the policy to give unlimited access in this area to youth groups, the only restriction being that each area is limited to one group at a time.

Try Out Tent At Home

Before you leave for your camping trip erect your tent in the backyard. If it is a new tent follow the manufacturer's directions and practice until you can erect it quickly and easily.

Check your tent for leaks by showering it with the garden hose. This soaking will tighten up seams. Dry your tent after each trip to guard against mildew.

AIR THOROUGHLY

Air your tent thoroughly and check for tears and faulty zippers. Check air mattresses for slow leaks.

Lay out all your cooking equipment. Make sure the all-important frying pan is in good condition and that your pots and pans are sound and clean. Take enough cutlery for every member of your party.

Indispensable tools include can-opener, flapjack turner, and a good all-utility knife. Plastic plates and containers are very useful around the campsite, but care should be taken not to place them close to heat.

Another useful item is aluminum foil. Your imagination will find 101 uses for that versatile material.

Fishing Best in World

The waters that surround Vancouver Island give up the best salmon fishing to be found anywhere in the world.

In the lower Vancouver Island waters salmon fishing for sport has become a year-round activity in the sheltered inlets and bays and sometimes the winter spring (chinook) fishing is even better than summer and fall salmon fishing.

You can get started with a salmon tackle outfit costing about $25, or for that matter you can rent tackle from a marina for a dollar or two.

For the starter a fibreglass six-or seven-foot salmon trolling rod, not too heavy and not too light, should be fine and you can get them for as low as $5. A $12 rod would be about ideal.

Later you move into heavier rods for wire line and lighter rods — about the same as you use for steelheading — for coho fishing on the fly.

Plastic reels can be bought for as low as $4 or $5, but if you can afford a little more, you are better off with a six-inch Steelite or a locally-made six inch Peetz reel, both of which are around $12.

With rod and reel purchased you need about 300 yards of 25-pound test monofilament line, three or four weights in four-ounce, six-ounce, eight-ounce and 12-ounce sizes.

A flasher, or dodger, is optional but desirable.

For lures, statistics show nothing outshines herring strip or minnow and you would be wise to pick up several Rhys Davis Minnow-Teasers and Strip-Teasers, or some Krippled Minnow heads.

Rhys Davis himself likes to fish the East Point and Tumbo Island waters with his Super Strip-Teaser lures. "Push the strip right into the Teaser. Use a knife blade to push it in. Leave the hook to hand. You can draw it back half an inch or draw it back to the tail, whichever you prefer," he says.

He cuts a quarter-inch slit in the tail of the strip to give it more flutter action. The Super-Strip should swim as it rolls, he says. He changes the strip on each strike or fish. He says it is the easiest to use of his six Teaser lures.

In Active Pass waters Oak Bay's Undersea Gardens operator Charlie White advises four to 12 ounces of weight and regular Teasers for springs and Super-Teasers for coho.

"You must have the action... a curl and a snap," he says. "Trim the strip to get it to curl around the end of the hook when it spins," he advises.

"Watch the tail. If it goes in a big wow I don't like it. The trailing edge should go in a right little curl that is much smaller than the head," he says. To get the action he pulls his hook tight against the Teaser bubble and then bends it outwards.

Wherever fish are, you will find Henry and Ida Rollin.

He uses 10-pound leader and never uses a flasher, although he admits they can be very effective.

Finlayson Arm guide Gordon Lamont says: "Most of the time minnows or herring strip work best in Saanich Inlet, but in January small spoons or buck-tail flies work better.

He prefers Super Strip-Teaser to any other lure as a consistent producer, although he uses Minnow-Teasers, Krippled Minnows, Strip-Teasers and plugs.

He likes the different roll of the Super Strip-Teaser and sometimes bends his Teasers to get a big roll instead of a short spin. "That big roll seems more effective at times," he says.

He likes to use the clear lures in Saanich Inlet, but when fishing Cowichan Bay or Nahc near the spawning rivers he prefers the green fluorescent Super Strip-Teasers.

Brentwood guide and Krippled Minnow manufacturer Jim Gilbert says "use of a dodger or flasher is probably the most controversial subject in salmon fishing. In lots of cases a dodger will compensate for a fisherman who isn't able to get the right action from his bait, especially with a short leader."

Sometimes he uses eight feet of leader behind a dodger which is then really only used to attract fish.

"Generally speaking, most of the time we use a dodger with bait when we are fishing jacksprings or springs in the 10 to 12 pound class. The big fish can be taken more without a dodger, but you have to spend more time getting the right action," he says.

When fishing with minnows he uses dodgers 90 per cent of the time. When fishing strip he uses a dodger 50 per cent of the time.

Oak Bay guide Howard Pepper likes a fluorescent green Super-Strip-Teaser on dull, dark days. "I prefer the Super-Strip for springs and coho. We find a Super trolls just as well, fast or slow," Pepper says.

With minnows he puts a hook in the side below the dorsal fin and pulls the line tight to get a bit of a bend in the minnow... enough of a bend to give a tight roll.

As strip rolls in the water the last two or three inches should give quite a flutter, he says.

A good setup to fish Pedder Bay waters, where it pays to bounce your line along the bottom, is a lead ball on a special hookup.

Use 30-pound test nylon line with a swivel on the end which will go through the eyes of the rod. Clipped to the swivel use about a foot or two of around 20-hook test nylon to tie on a one to three-pound lead ball.

At the same swivel tie on about 20 feet of 30-pound test nylon with a three-or four-foot surgical rubber tubing snubber at the end.

Hook the flasher to the swivel at the end of the tubing and then attach your teaser lure to the flasher with anywhere from 18 to 32 inches of leader.

The fish will pull away at the snubber until the other lines are brought in.

Simply lower the lead weight until it hits bottom, then pull it up a few inches and troll with it bouncing along the bottom. If you hang up you just lose a cheap weight which was tied on to lighter test leader. When you get a fish reel in to the lead ball, unclip the weight from the swivel and you can play your fish with no weight to detract from the fun.

Glowing Coals Best For Outdoor Grilling

When grilling out of doors start your fire early enough — you want glowing coals, not flames. Charcoal should be ash white on the outside and glowing red from within when the fire is ready. This will take about half an hour.

To prevent sticking, brush the hot grill with vegetable oil before putting food on.

Aluminum foil has many uses around a barbecue. Its reflection when used as a liner between the coals and the base, throws out extra heat. Makes clean-up easier too. Corn or blocks of frozen vegetables roast evenly when wrapped in foil and placed on the grill. They should be turned several times while cooking.

Barbecue equipment may be modest or elegant. Essentials, however, are simple. They include a grill, charcoal or briquets, a fork or tongs with a long handle, a brush for basting and a pair of heavy mitts. Starter fluids make fire starting easier, but the old-fashioned match is still reliable.

Cookouts Provide Fun, Relaxation

Simple or elegant outdoor cooking should be fun and friendly. It is a good time to get to know someone better, a time for relaxation and creativity.

Most fathers like to take over the chores at the grill, many mothers just move their kitchen habits outside and teen children often cook their own food or help the parents. Whatever the pattern, barbecue time is perfect for family or group teamwork.

What is the most suitable food for barbecue cooking? Don't limit your thinking on this, but the four basics are beef (ground or steak), fish, chicken and poultry (turkey or chicken).

Recipes for these are simple and variety can be obtained by using different sauces for marinating, basting and serving. For home-made sauces you will find that tomato sauce offers a convenient base. Add your other favorites like soy or Worcestershire sauce, mustard, wine, spices and herbs to the tomato sauce as you desire.

Steaks are always the most popular fare among adults and hamburger is the favorite of children.

By using instant meat tenderizer, delicious steaks cut from lower cost chuck, rump, sirloin tip and round can be barbecued to tender perfection.

If you have a rotisserie, don't overlook turkey for your barbecue. It is easy to prepare and if you watch for specials it can be purchased inexpensively.

Don't forget some form of monosodium glutamate. It brings out the flavor in all savories. It adds no flavor of its own, but it makes beef taste "beefier" and it makes hamburgers seem juicier. One teaspoon per pound of meat is about the right quantity.

From Sidney it is only a short distance to the American San Juan Islands, of which Orcas and San Juan are the biggest.
The skipper of your craft must check in with American Customs officials when you dock at Friday Harbor and before anyone else in the party sets foot on American soil.
There is little formality and a list of names in all that is required. Sometimes Customs officials come on board for a routine inspection.

When you leave American waters you MUST check in again with Canadian Customs at Bedwell Harbor on South Pender Island, where you will find another marine park and campsite, or at Sidney.

In Canadian waters the east tip of Saturna Island at East Point and off Tumbo Island are sometimes fabulous salmon fishing waters. There is another marine park at Montague Harbor on the west coast of Galiano Island.

Salt Spring Island is nearby and provides some wonderful cruising water around its entire circumference. Mayne Island is interesting and on July 1 weekend the lamb barbecues of Saturna Island draw cruising holidaymakers by the hundreds and hundreds.

Active Pass, between Mayne and Galiano Islands, must be navigated with caution and small boats would be well advised to miss it.

It can, however, be a fine fishing area as can Porlier Pass between Galiano and Valdes Islands. Porlier Pass can be, especially when you meet the government ferries in Active.

It is a day's easy cruising

For group cruising it is a good idea to join one of the yacht clubs, or the Victoria Outboard Club, which was organized for such small-boat cruising and camping as has been described here.

This club takes special pride in helping fellow boaters get the most fun out of their boat.

It has a full schedule of summer cruises and small boaters may feel confident that there is another boat nearby ready to render aid if they run into trouble.

Cruises are not all arranged from start to finish and in most cases each member amuses himself in his own way.

Some just like the peace and quiet of a snug cove or sunny beach. Others go swimming, fishing, clam digging or water skiing. Everyone enjoys the fellowship around the bonfire at night. While they don't all cruise together they do make sure that at least two boats are always together. There is always a buddy around to help ... and that is a comforting thought while cruising.

No Fishing Licence Needed For Most Tidal Waters

Salmon limit for sports fishermen is four salmon or grilse in one day and grilse must measure 12 inches or more from tip of the nose to centre of the tail.

In Alberni Inlet inside of Bluff Point and in the mouths of the Gold and Burman River a limit may include only two spring (chumook) salmon, including tyee. Special tidal sport fishing licences are required to fish the Gold and Burman waters. Otherwise no fishing licence is required to fish in tidal waters.

Trout must measure no less than eight inches from tip of nose to centre of tail, except in lakes where there is no size limit. Catch limit for trout is 12 a day, except in the Cowichan River where limit is four trout. Not more than two fish of a trout limit may be over 20 inches in length.

Ling cod must measure 23 inches or more from tip of nose to tip of tail and in waters from Beechey Head around the east coast to the top of the Island ling cod are out of season from December to February inclusive.

Crabs must measure 6 1/2 inches across and limit is six a day.

Razor clams must measure

3 1/2 inches, butter clams 2 1/2 inches and littleneck clams 1 1/2 inches.

Jigs, gaffs, spears, rakes or any other sharp-pointed instrument must not be used to take crabs.

A fresh water fishing licence for B.C. residents costs $2 and covers the period from April 1 to March 31. No licence is required for under 18-year-olds.

Non resident Canadians have to pay $3.50 for a B.C. fishing licence and non-resident aliens pay $10 or $2 for a three-day period, only one of which may be obtained in a year. Visitors under the age of 18 pay only $1 for a licence.

Match Colors To Fish

Plug manufacturer and Brentwood salmon fishing guide Tom Moss advises to match the color of a plug with the shade of water in much the same manner as a herring or shrimp will change colors to blend in with water.

The color of the plug has to fade in to suit the water—red water, coffee water, blue water, black water—caused by heavy hatches of plankton or local conditions like floodwater, he says.

He says commercial fishermen on the west coast use 42 different color combinations for their salmon trolling plugs. He manufactures 32 different-colored plugs.

Citizen's Band Radio Valuable Fishing Gadget

One of the handiest gadgets that's come on the fishing scene since spinning reels is the inexpensive CB (citizen's band) radio.

While most anglers have successfully pursued their favorite sport without the benefits of airwave communications for decades, the introduction of low-cost two-way radios offers men advantages and conveniences that many fishermen cannot overlook.

The limited-range CB radio has numerous practical applications which are becoming more and more apparent on larger waters.

In lakes, bays or offshore where game fish school and feed on or near the surface, fishing is fast and furious for short periods. Guides in such waters are inclined to co-operate with each other, and when one runs into a productive situation, the call goes out for all in radio range to come running.

Professional men can maintain contact with their offices and still go fishing, as established message relay systems in effect in many areas permit them to enjoy a wide choice of fishing destinations.

Invaluable for emergencies, a boater can use a CB radio to summon assistance if he runs out of gas. And, if he takes a wrong turn, a few minutes advice can get him straightened out.

Though the CB radio has caught the public fancy and its use is steadily growing, overuse may nullify its future value.

CB sets won't catch fish, but they may make fishing more enjoyable.

Two Types of Camping

Camping has become as simple as placing your home on wheels and moving it outdoors.

There are still the outdoorsmen who believe that camping is not really camping, unless you rough it in the outdoors miles from any evidence of civilization — and there are still places where that kind of individualist can get true enjoyment.

As a matter of fact the trend in camping seems to be established that you either take a lightweight tent and minimum equipment and head for the bush, mountains or streams, or you go all the way with equipment that brings the comforts of home right into the outdoors.

COMFORTS OF HOME

The days when camping was considered as an economy holiday are pretty well gone. Whole families are taking to the outdoors because they like to live close to nature, but not so close as to be without everyday comforts that these days are considered necessities.

Camper vans and vacation trailers have extended the camping season to a year-round activity for the most enthusiastic on Vancouver Island and to a busy four or five month season for most resorts, who previously only figured on a spotty two-month season for tenters.

Latest thing is the lightweight tent-trailer, which tows easily behind even the smallest of cars and in a matter of seconds folds out to an off-the-ground tent with sleeping accommodation on mattresses or foam rubber for as many as six, plus comfortable living space. Handy compartments within the trailer allow easy storage of camping equipment and a 12-foot cartoptype boat can easily be carried on top of the low-level (when folded for travelling) trailer-tent.

These tent-trailers range in the $400 to $700 price bracket and are the first step towards camper vans or vacation travel trailers.

The most popular item in the camping field these days is the camper van which is a complete camping unit which is loaded onto the back of a pickup truck, and if the truck is required for transportation at the campsite it can easily be jacked off the truck.

These are fitted out just like a trailer with stoves, beds, cab-over private bedrooms, kitchen set, cupboards and some even have chemical toilets, like the small trailers. Any weekend — summer or winter — these camper vans may be seen travelling the highways to favorite outdoors spots.

DISADVANTAGES

Many consider them the ideal camping outfit. One disadvantage is that they don't lend themselves too well to taking a boat along, although some manage to get a car-topper on top of the camper and others tow their boats on a trailer, which makes a pretty big load.

Camper vans range from the home-made varieties to the big plush type in the $1,000 to $6,000 price bracket, plus a truck.

The increasingly-popular window vans or custom buses are being used more and more for camping and can either be converted by handy home builders, or complete camping fittings, including flip-tops for stand-up headroom may be purchased as made-to-fit standard travel wagon conversion kits.

FACTORY-BUILT

These factory-built camping conversions are designed to sleep two adults and four children and include dinette seats which convert to double bed, dinette table, roll-up canvas bunks, two-burner gas stove, refrigerator, sink with running water, wood cabinets, portable toilet, 12-volt transformer, 110-volt outlet, plus optional equipment — all installed in a station wagon window van.

There is little doubt that once at the camping site the trailer is the most comfortable of all and for anyone planning to spend some time at one spot, the trailer is definitely the answer.

However, towing some of the bigger units presents a problem for some drivers and for those who want to move about. A big advantage of a trailer is that once on site the car is available for moving about the country without disturbing the camping setup. The car can be used to carry a car-top boat.

from teeny sleeping units to big mobile homes.

Tenting has made such great strides in the past decade that "tenting it" is no longer "roughing it."

Sewn-in floors are almost universal now. The trend is towards bigger and higher cabin-type tents, some with two or three individual rooms. Emphasis is placed upon ease of setting up and within a matter of minutes any tent can now be ready for use.

So much lightweight and handy camping equipment is available that there is no excuse for roughing-it even in the wilderness.

Gasoline stoves with special safety features make camp cooking easy and safe in the most hazardous weather and they even come equipped with handy ovens. A wide variety of barbecue units are suitable for camp cooking and these can obviate the use of campfires in hazardous weather and yet retain the pleasure of outdoor cooking.

Aluminum has brought light weight to camping and tables, chairs, and lounge cots which double as comfortable chairs are all a part of today's camping. Air mattresses and foam rubber have brought a new dimension of comfort and a variety of coolers are available. Gas lamps are a must unless you plan to set up at a campsite where electric light hookups are available. Be sure to take along an extension cord for that purpose. Portable toilets which can be used with disposable bags, or even a chemical for longer stays, take some of the disagreeableness out of party camping.

Nearly every campsite now has a laundromat somewhere close by. Yes, unlike their parents of just a few years ago, this year's crop of campers will "rough it" in more comfort than three-quarters of the world live in today.

Rules of the Road Aid Safety Afloat

Traffic regulations have been adopted to make automobile travel as safe and enjoyable as possible. The same is true of boating. Rules of the road have been established to insure maximum safety afloat and, when correctly followed, they even add to the fun of boating.

Both newcomers and veterans should occasionally review these rules. Here's a guide. The smart skipper also checks additional regulations where he plans to do his boating.

MEETING — When two boats approach head on, each skipper steers to the right or starboard and the boats pass port side to port side.

OVERTAKING — When one boat is overtaking another, he must keep clear of the slower boat.

CROSSING — Similar to a automobile regulations, the person to the operator's right has the right of way, and you must give way to him. If necessary, the operator is required to slow down, stop or reverse his craft to accomplish this.

GETTING UNDERWAY — Boats leaving slips, wharves and piers have no rights until they are in open water. Therefore, you must proceed with caution.

SAILBOATS — With some exceptions, the sailboat has the right of way over power craft. One exception is the situation of a sailboat passing a power craft. But sailboats can no longer hold up huge ships, such as liners or freighters.

FISHING BOATS — Take it easy when you are passing near fishermen. Fishing boats whether anchored or underway with nets, lines or trawls out, have the right of way.

ACCIDENTS — In any emergency, it is the duty of the boatman to stand by and render all possible assistance.

COURTESY — Many day-to-day boating situations do not come under written regulations. The answer then is simple common sense and boating courtesy. Just remember one thing: Would you like it if the other boatmen were doing the same thing?
